Will Crew's Secret Pact Keep 'Love Boat' Afloat?

Glen Campbell's Wild Life-Style Outrages His Folks Back Home

Glen Campbell's own family hate and condemn his wild, self-centered behavior. The singer's parents and brothers say he's leading an "immoral life" that has him "headed for hell."

The Campbell clan back in tiny Billstown, Ark., is outraged by Glen's string of three divorces and his sizzling romance with singer Tanya Tucker — who's half his age.

And they're furious over Glen's dumping of his 12-year-old son Kane on a sister while he and Tanya live it up.

Some angry relatives say they won't even let Glen into their homes anymore. One relative believes the star has become "an instrument of the devil."

It's a seething flood of disapproval that could become yet another obstacle in the romance of Glen, 44, and Tantalizing Tanya, 22 — who have already been fighting like crazy even while talking marriage.

"I don't approve of all Glen's divorcing! And now he's thinking of marrying a girl half his age — it ain't right. It's wrong," stormed Glen's father, John Wesley Campbell.

Carrie Campbell, the star's mother, angrily added:

"Glen is doing wrong! I don't like all his divorcing, and I told him Tanya's too young."

"He has a daughter three years older than her."

"We love him but we can't agree with his immoral life. We pray for him and we hope he gets to heaven, but the good Lord is going to have to forgive a lot."

Glen himself is tortured by his own wild, immoral behavior, say relatives.

They reveal that when Campbell returned to Billstown recently, he broke down and cried in a local church during the Sunday sermon.

"Glen began to sob as the preacher condemned sin," a close relative said.

Glen's conscience finally bothered him. He's tormented.

But as soon as Campbell left Billstown, he went back to his old ways — continuing his romance with Tanya even though his family think it's a relationship he should end fast.

"She's a child! He could be her daddy," declared Glen's oldest brother, Wayne.

Another brother, Lindell — a preacher in Billstown's Church of Christ — added:

"There's no way that a marriage between Glen and Tanya will work. There's too much of an age difference, and they fight like cats and dogs."

The Campbell clan is especially upset over Glen's treatment of his young son Kane.

In December, Glen and Tanya brought Kane to Billstown, dumped him on Glen's sister Jane in neighboring Murfreesboro — then jetted off to Nashville to visit Tanya's parents.

Glen hasn't been back since. He not only missed Christmas with his son, he also wasn't there when Kane was 12 on February 12.

"I wish my daddy had been here for my birthday. But he was with Tanya," said the boy.

"I want to be with my daddy. I love Daddy and I miss him."

And Glen almost never sees his year-old son Dillon Ian, who lives with the singer's ex-wife Sarah.

One relative, upset by Glen's antics, declared: "I don't want his likes in my house. He's an instrument of the devil."

Said another outraged relative, a housewife: "I don't want a man that sinful in my home."

It's not only Glen's romance with Tanya and his treatment of his children but his whole fast-paced life-style that has his relatives upset.

Storms his brother Lindell: "Glen is going against the laws of God. His divorces, his romance, the whole thing is just too much for me and our folks."

"He has slapped God right in the face. He has turned from God. I pray for him every day, hoping the Lord will forgive him."

"I love Glen, the Lord loves Glen, but He hates sin — and Glen is sinning. He's headed for hell."

The family admits Glen helps them financially. "He's kind and generous," says his father. "But he's leading an immoral life and the Lord knows that."

"He's got a good soul and we love him, but he's not going to get to heaven. You can't buy your way into heaven."

Simple Way to Avoid Lung Cancer From Smoking

In an astounding new discovery, doctors have found a way you can smoke and never worry about it giving you lung cancer.

All you have to do is regularly take a simple sputum test that spots the changes in lung cells which signal the beginning of cancer.

If the changes aren't present, you have nothing to fear. And if they ever show up in a test, you just stop smoking — and you won't get lung cancer, say researchers.

The sputum cytology examination should be taken by smokers every three months, say top doctors.

If a smoker's test is clear at first, but a later test shows the precancerous cells ("dysplasia"), the smoker can cure himself just by giving up cigarettes provided the condition was caused by smoking, declares Canadian lung cancer specialist Dr. Norman Delarue.

"If he quits smoking then he can be virtually sure that the changes will reverse," the expert said.

At least 80 percent of all lung cancer is due to smoking, say experts. The rest is caused by such factors as asbestos, pollution and coal dust.

Dr. M. Nadji, director of the cytopathology laboratory at the University of Miami-Jackson Memorial Medical Center, agrees that "if a person quits smoking at the very first sign of dysplasia, it's very sure that the changes will reverse."

Once a smoker quits the habit, he gets rid of precancerous cells by coughing them up, said Dr. Delarue.

He added that if a sputum test shows clear, there's no way you could advance to lung cancer by the time you take another test three or four months later. The disease takes far longer than that to develop, he explained.

Dr. Delarue and his associates did a study of seven patients who gave up smoking immediately after doctors detected dysplasia in their lungs. And the researchers' discovery was recently reported in the prestigious Canadian Journal of Surgery.

"We found that the seven patients had cured themselves," Dr. Delarue revealed. "None had any cancer even after five years."

Once the victim stops smoking, he should be rechecked in three months to make sure the condition has reversed itself, says Dr. Robert Haggopian, assistant professor of surgery and oncology at the University of Miami.

Dr. Delarue's discovery was hailed as "very important" by Dr. Emil Freireich,

Early Warning Test Will Tell If You Need to Quit

head of the department of developmental therapeutics at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital. "It's a very positive finding," he said. "Even if you have early lung cancer, the chances are you can cure yourself."

You can get the test through your personal physician, says Dr. Warren Lang of Philadelphia's Jefferson Medical College. The cost is usually $25 to $30.

"You have to cough up from the lungs. Simple saliva isn't enough. It means really reaching down, a good deep cough," adds Dr. Lang, acting chairman of the college's department of pathology.

Most people can easily cough up sputum, say doctors. If not, breathing a special spray will help.

The doctors point out that the easiest way of all to protect yourself against cancer is to not smoke.

But if you just can't give up smoking, then the sputum test is your best protection.

State Imports White Rabbits — For Hunters to Kill

By NEIL BLINCOE

The State of Rhode Island bought 100 cute snowshoe rabbits from Canada — so local hunters could blow them to bits.

In a disgusting example of bureaucratic cruelty, the bunnies were specially ordered to arrive during the hunting season, and were released in popular hunting areas.

"This is deplorable," fumed Dennis Tabella, president of Defenders of Animals. "These sick bureaucrats just don't give a damn that a lot of people don't think killing is justified — and as pecially don't want their state to pay for it with their tax dollars."

The state's Department of Environmental Management spent $625 to buy the rabbits from the Canadian province of New Brunswick.

"The head of the department said he was under pressure from the hunters to order the rabbits," Tabella charged.

And the department's deputy chief for wildlife, James Chadwick, admitted: "By buying the rabbits, we are serving as middlemen to keep the hunters happy. There are no laws prohibiting us from importing animals for hunting."

Furious Francis Gaschen, attorney for Defenders of Animals, added, "Snowshoe rabbits are the big, white Easter Bunny-type rabbits. It's ironic that the state is letting people go at the university because they can't pay salaries — yet they go out and buy wildlife for a few hunters to blow to bits."

Cries of protest also came from the state's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA). "The state should be saving wildlife, not going out of the way to have it butchered," stormed SPCA general agent Lionel Hetu.

Military Life Is Better for Women Than Men

By PAUL F. LEVY

Women are happier with military life than men are, an eye-opening study has found.

"Women are definitely better suited to their jobs in the military than men," declared Dr. David Gottlieb, who made a study of 116 enlistees for the Army Research Institute.

"They're more satisfied, their expectations are different and they're more mature. Also, they've already been trained by society to be more passive and accepting of discipline. They're housebroken."

SHE Was Once a HE

In one of the most bizarre love stories ever, a retired Army officer is suing his beautiful ex-girlfriend — after he found out she once was a man.

For four years, Otto Chesnovsky, 53, and Suzanne Shaw, a 30-year-old blonde dancer, were head over heels in love. They were engaged to be married in 1977.

But the romance spurred a lawsuit instead of a wedding when he learned the startling secret that Shaw was born male but underwent a sex-change operation in 1976.

"It was a shock when I found out she wasn't really a woman," said Chesnovsky. "Someone else told me she had a sex change. I was very disappointed. She's a beautiful woman."

... And a Love Story Ends In Court Instead of Church

Chesnovsky, who lives in Columbus, Ga., has filed a civil suit against Shaw, demanding the return of $56,000 in cash, gifts and real estate he gave her during their love affair.

A $26,000 down payment on a house, a $3,500 fur coat and a $5,700 engagement ring are among the items he has listed in the suit filed in Bucks County Court near Shaw's suburban Philadelphia home.

Shaw "masqueraded as a woman, wearing women's clothes and makeup and a feminine hairstyle," and she never intended to marry but planned to defraud Chesnovsky, the former Army officer charges in the suit.

Shaw denies duping Chesnovsky. "I was always Suzanne," she said, pointing out that she changed her legal name as well as her sex. "I had fallen in love with Otto and wanted to get married, but he just walked out and left. Like any woman, it broke my heart," said Shaw.

The couple met shortly after her sex-change operation, when Shaw was working as a dancer in a Philadelphia nightclub. Chesnovsky took her to the finest restaurants, bought her gifts, even introduced her to his children from a former marriage.

When he learned of the operation, "he just left me cold. I spent the weekend crying my eyes out. It was a shock. We had a wonderful romance. We were a man and a woman in love. If only I hadn't ended this way," said Shaw.

"It could have been a marriage made in heaven."

China's Amazing Psychic Children

Top experts are amazed at the astonishing ability of Chinese children to "read" words and "see" colors with their hands, ears and amplitudes.

And some Chinese youngsters even have X-ray vision, they say.

After conducting experiments under rigid scientific conditions, the experts have come to the conclusion that the youngsters' remarkable abilities are absolutely genuine.

"I see no chance of cheating or fraud having taken place in the tests," marveled Harvard-educated Chinese-American physicist Dr. Chih Kung Jen.

And, he added, the few children who have already been carefully tested in China are just the tip of the iceberg.

He estimates that as many as 50 percent of China's youngsters can do the same things.

Chinese researchers report an amazing 11-year-old boy can "see" the position of a baby inside its mother.

"I have also heard accounts of children who are able to see through the human body and see the lung and heart," added Dr. Jen.

In three tests involving a total of 12 children last fall, Dr. Jen and other experts were amazed when the youngsters "read" messages concealed inside carefully folded paper. Incredibly, the youngsters achieved 98 percent average accuracy.

Then, he reported, the image "began to expand while the color remained constant, the word changed from hazy to bright, and became visibly large and highly readable."

During the tests, some children had amazing success "reading" messages which were held up to their ears, hands, backs and other parts of the body.

And in one case, he said, a 10-year-old Peking girl correctly recited words written on paper, wrapped up, sealed inside a wax ball and placed in a plastic box.

China's incredible psychic children were also studied firsthand by Dr. Cyrus Lee, a professor of psychology at Pennsylvania's Edinboro State College.

During scientific tests he helped prepare in China last year, Dr. Lee also reported he found about 200 youngsters who could read with their ears and many other parts of their bodies.

"There was no way these children could cheat," Dr. Lee said.

"They were blindfolded and required to work in darkened rooms."

Another ESP test in China, conducted in front of 10 audiences totaling more than 2,000 scientists, doctors, educators and journalists, was sponsored by the respected scientific journal Nature.

In the test, 14 youngsters read messages that were hidden in heavy paper bags or plastic boxes.

One girl read a message that was placed under her armpit.

Accounts in Chinese newspapers tell of even more youngsters with the amazing ability. One report told of an engineer who was trying to locate an underground cement pipe — and a psychic boy led him right to the spot.

And experienced Chinese newspaper reporter Ah Er described his amazing encounter with a 18-year-old girl who literally saw right through him.

"Her eyes focused on my chest, and she exclaimed, 'Your esophagus (food pipe) looks different from a normal person's.' She drew a section of my esophagus, with a small shape sticking out. Her drawing looked exactly like X-rays which had been taken by two hospitals I had visited. I was dumbfounded."

Will She Be Lady Mary?

Multimillionaire British Aristocrat Is Romancing Mary Tyler Moore

Springtime romance is budding for Mary Tyler Moore and the new man in her life, dashing British aristocrat Sir Gordon White.

Mary and the silver-haired multimillionaire, who owns a string of racehorses, have been enjoying cozy dinner dates together in swank New York cafes and at his elegant Park Avenue apartment. Insiders say the happy couple have also been spotted bugging and kissing openly in public like a pair of lovesick teenagers.

"He's very fond of her," confirmed Sir Gordon's longtime friend and business associate, Edward Collins.

"Certainly there is more than just a platonic relationship."

A budding romance would be a pretty close evaluation of it."

Mary, 43, and Sir Gordon, 57, met earlier this year through mutual friends and "just seemed to hit it off," according to Collins. "Ever since Mary broke up with her husband, Grant Tinker, she's been looking for a man she can respect. Sir Gordon fits the bill right down to his coat of arms."

"Can you imagine — if they marry she'll be Lady Mary!" The popular actress, who recently was nominated for an Oscar for her role in "Or-

GRANT TINKER: Mary's husband for 17 years.

Collins told THE ENQUIRER. A friend of Mary in Hollywood confided: "Ever since Mary broke up with her husband, Grant Tinker, she's been looking for a man she can respect. Sir Gordon fits the bill right down to his coat of arms."

"Can you imagine — if they marry she'll be Lady Mary!" The popular actress, who recently was nominated for an Oscar for her role in "Orinary People," has been separated from her husband since September and has filed for divorce after 17 years of marriage.

Sir Gordon was divorced nearly two years ago from his second wife and has a son and two daughters.

He races horses in England and France, has homes in London, New York and Bermuda, and he was knighted in 1979 by Queen Elizabeth for his efforts in promoting British exports.

"Gordon's just the right type for Mary," said the actress' Hollywood friend.

"He's successful in his own right, he's distinguished and he's a sophisticated man of the world."

"For Mary, he's a welcome change from the show business types she usually associates with," the friend added.

Recently at piano player Bobby Short's opening night at the ritzy Cafe Carlyle in New York, Mary and Sir Gordon were spotted cuddling in the shadows like two people in love.

"They weren't making any secret of it," said one source. "They were really going at it, really making a display. Mary had her arms around his neck and was kissing him on the lips in front of everyone. I couldn't believe it."

A photographer at the same cafe confirmed that Mary and Sir Gordon were hugging and kissing at their table, and said that they continued to love it up in their car as they left the night spot.

"She really seemed pleased that we had taken pictures of them together," the photographer said. "She wasn't trying to hide anything at all. She had eyes only for him."

Holdup 6 Years Ago Made Her a Widow, So This Time . . . Shopkeeper Shoots First — And Kills Gun-Toting Robber

BUSINESS AS USUAL for Lucila Peters, shown waiting on customer in her Los Angeles grocery store.

Six years after her grocer husband was mercilessly gunned down in a holdup by a cold-blooded killer, Lucila Peters got revenge against the lawless animals who prey on decent, hardworking Americans.

Last January 19, a young robber strutted into her Los Angeles market and demanded money at gunpoint — and Lucila blasted him into hell with a .38-caliber pistol she'd hidden behind the counter.

"When I saw his gun," the spunky 43-year-old shopkeeper recalled, "I thought, 'Oh, my God! It's happening again. They got my husband — now they're going to get me.'"

"I knew he was going to shoot me. But I thought, 'No! I'm going to get him first.'"

"I raised my gun — and shot him."

The would-be thief died an hour later at a local hospital.

"Mrs. Peters is a hero — absolutely," declared Los Angeles Police Detective Glen Tapley. "When she saw that gun pointed at her, it was very brave of her to raise her own gun and fire."

"She had no way of knowing whether she'd get the first shot off."

The detective paused, and then added "Maybe if thieves thought this was what was going to happen to them, there'd be fewer robberies."

Mrs. Peters, who witnessed her husband's brutal murder in 1974, said she's been afraid for her own life ever since.

But the plucky woman refused to be driven out of business. Instead, she kept the .38 constantly within reach.

"We're Christians," she explained, "but we believe in taking care of ourselves, too."

After killing the snarling gunman who was trying to loot her store, Mrs. Peters said, she "started shaking. And I've been shaking ever since."

"But, thank God, I'll be around to take care of my children. They won't have to live without a mother — like they had to live without a father."

"And the next person who comes in and tries to rob my store had better think twice about it — because I'm going to have my gun ready."

Billy Graham What Heaven Is Really Like

Heaven won't be a place to just sit around floating on clouds, because God will be keeping us too busy, says evangelist Billy Graham.

"The Father's house will be a happy home because there will also be work to do," Graham said. "I can think of no more terrible fate than to be condemned to sit forever and ever in idleness."

"Each one will be given exactly the task that suits his powers, tastes and abilities. Perhaps God will give us new worlds to conquer. Perhaps He will send us to explore some distant planet or star, there to preach His message of everlasting love.

"Whatever we do, the Bible says we shall serve Him. "Friends will be reunited. Not one of us who enters will feel lonely or strange.

"Heaven is home, with all its tender associations and sacred memories.

"Sometimes when things do not go right down here, we get homesick for heaven," he said.

Rev. Graham explained that many times, when you feel a tug at your heart when suffering a loss or sick in the hospital, you are actually feeling "homesickness (for heaven), coupled with anticipation."

"You are longing for home for heaven," he said. "Heaven is so beautiful that when St. John caught a

An incredible new lifesaving technique — using a bolt-like instrument inserted into the skull — is bringing drowning victims back from the dead!

In one remarkable case, a 14-year-old tot was revived — without brain damage — after floating face-down in water for about 15 minutes and with no heartbeat for more than half an hour.

"Three to four years ago, this child would have had no chance of making it," observed pediatric Dr. Eliezer Nussbaum.

"He was completely without vital signs. He was basically dead. And when he woke up, his parents thought it was a miracle."

The boy owes his life to the new technique — the key to which is an instrument that measures brain pressure inside the skull.

When a person's lungs are filled with water, his brain becomes starved for oxygen and begins to swell. This swelling raises the pressure inside the skull and clamps off blood vessels in the brain. Oxygen given by rescue workers can't reach the brain.

The key to avoiding brain damage is to lower the brain's demand for oxygen until the swelling goes down.

The first step is to surgically insert the bolt through the skull where it monitors brain pressure. The readings guide doctors in the next step — the actual lowering of the brain's need for oxygen.

They do this by giving the victim barbiturates or lowering the body temperature.

Govt. Promoting Women Workers Faster Than Men

Women in government jobs are being promoted faster than men, so unpublished study by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management reveals. During the one-year study, the agency found that one in every four women in government jobs got a promotion, compared to one promotion for every six men.

Lady Nancy Astor, who entered the British House of Commons in 1919 as the first female member, had few better in the art of vicious repartee. But she did have some and Winston Churchill was one of them.

After one hot and heavy interchange in Parliament, Lady Astor is reported to have said to Churchill, "Winston, if you were my husband, I'd poison your coffee."

"If you were my wife, Nancy," replied Churchill suavely, "I'd drink it."

Amazing New Technique Brings Drowning Victims Back to Life

The victim is temporarily put into a coma — which also lowers the need for oxygen — and is kept alive with artificial respiration.

"It's a revolutionary technique," declared Dr. Nussbaum, who is director of the pediatric intensive care unit at Miller Children's Hospital in Long Beach, Calif.

"And it's becoming more and more popular. Hopefully, within five years, it'll be used in almost every hospital."

A Canadian colleague, Dr. Alan Conn, said: "We've made some spectacular progress in this area. We feel that if someone is under cold water for as long as 15 minutes, he has around a 81 percent chance of a complete recovery."

Dr. Conn is director of the intensive care unit at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Dr. Geoffrey Barker, the associate director at the hospital, noted that the lifesaving treatment has been used there with "some fairly dramatic success."

"We've had examples of children who had been under water for 15 to 20 minutes. In the old days they would not have survived. But with this technique there may still be hope for many drowned persons that people think are dead."

Fred Astaire and Jockey Wife Put Marriage Back on the Right Track

Fred Astaire and his jockey wife Robyn are once again galloping down the road of love — and stamping out reports that their nine-month-old marriage is in trouble.

London newspapers reported that he had offered his 36-year-old wife a $1-million divorce settlement.

Astaire labeled the reports "completely untrue," adding, "Robyn and I have never even been in a quarrel." And insiders declare that the 81-year-old entertainer is determined to make his marriage work.

Earlier this winter, Robyn worked at the racetrack while Astaire spent two months filming the new movie "Ghost Story" on location in New England. There, he turned to pretty production assistant Suzie Petersen, 28, for companionship, according to reports which Astaire later denied.

His absence from Robyn while on location made his heart grow fonder.

"Fred and Robyn are as different as night and day and they've certainly had their differences," said a longtime friend.

"But when Fred was away from Robyn for so long, he realized that he missed her and he did a lot of thinking about where his life was going. 'So when he returned home recently, he figured it was a great time for a second honeymoon at home.'"

"And that's exactly what they've been having — a second honeymoon to square things away."

Astaire bought Robyn a beautiful jeweled gift after he returned to Hollywood and on March 22 he took her out to the posh Palm Restaurant in

Said an insider, "Right now Fred seems supremely happy."

Enquirer's Ronald Reagan Look-Alike Takes Washington, D.C., by Storm

By GEORGE HUNTER

When does a New York City ex-cop get VIP treatment from both wide-eyed tourists and astonished residents in Washington, D.C.?

When he's the mirror image of the President of the United States — and the $500 winner of The ENQUIRER's Ronald Reagan Look-Alike Contest!

"This is fantastic!" exulted Jay Koch moments after being mobbed by an excited throng outside the east gate of the White House.

"I've been mistaken for Ronald Reagan for 30 years — but for it to happen so dramatically right outside the White House is absolutely unbelievable."

The ENQUIRER escorted the 56-year-old Koch on a whirlwind two-day tour of the nation's capital to see if he could fool people on the street with his uncanny resemblance to the new President.

And there were double takes galore!

One Washington resident, Glida Del Signore, convinced that she had spotted the President, ran up breathlessly to shake Koch's hand.

"It's incredible!" she gasped when the former police sergeant revealed his identity.

"Terrific! You even have the personality to go with your looks!"

As Koch — who now lives in Camarillo, Calif. — casually strolled through the U.S. Capitol building, Edward Brown of Shelbyville, Tenn., commented:

"The resemblance is remarkable — and I can see how you'd fool a lot of people."

Outside the White House, hundreds of thrilled tourists surrounded the smiling Koch — pushing to get closer so they could shake his hand or get his autograph.

"Mr. President!" cried out German tourist Fritz Baur of Essen, who then dashed to Koch's side to congratulate him on his election victory.

"Are you really President Reagan?" astonished admirers asked.

"No," he laughed. "Sorry, I'm Jay Koch. The NATIONAL ENQUIRER's Ronald Reagan look-alike winner. I've never even met the President."

A dumbfounded White House guard shouted: "Well, you certainly look like the President!"

Even Washington attorney Mitchell Rogovin, who worked in John Anderson's unsuccessful presidential campaign and has naturally met President Reagan, delightedly told Jay Koch: "You're a great look-alike. You really caught me off guard."

When the woman arrived for a painter to redecorate her apartment and the moment he touched she handed him a wooden paddle, the end of which was dabbed with paint. She ordered him to match the color as closely as possible.

When she saw the finished job, she was overwhelmed. "It's perfect — just marvelous," she said.

"You certainly have a skill for matching colors."

The painter smiled his appreciation and kept his mouth shut. Later, he told another painter what the woman had said.

The other painter couldn't believe it. "How did you do it?" he wondered.

"Simple," was the answer. "I just repainted the paddle."

"Magic" Indian Oil CATCHES FISH LIKE CRAZY!

I made this remarkable discovery when my son went on his first fishing trip with me. We had this old Indian guide in a small town in Wisconsin.

When our guide showed Mark how to bait his hook, I noticed that he rubbed something on the bait just before Mark put the line in the lake.

Within minutes Mark had himself a beautiful bass. You can imagine how pleased I was and Mark, of course, repeated more.

So the whole thing was repeated — the guide put on the bait, rubbed it again, and he popped another beautiful bass.

Meanwhile, I sat there patiently waiting for my first fish.

This went on all morning. Mark caught 25 bass and I got eight.

When I pulled the line in at noon and paid off our Indian guide, I noticed that a small, viscous mass had apparently fallen from the guide's pockets into the bottom of our boat.

The odor from the seal was quite strong and certainly different from anything I had ever smelled before. This was what he had rubbed on Mark's bait!

When we returned home the next day, I gave the seal to a chemist friend of mine. He analyzed it and duplicated it. It was a fatty acid.

I could hardly wait for my next fishing trip. What I discovered on that trip was absolutely unbelievable. I have never before caught fish like that. Every time I baited my hook, I sprayed it and up popped another fish.

I tested some other baits. I put spray on one bait and nothing on another. The sprayed bait got the fish almost immediately. The unsprayed bait got one nibble, but nothing more.

I gave some of my friends samples of the spray to try and the results were the same — they caught fish like never before.

I named my spray "CATCH FISH LIKE CRAZY!" (since that's just what it does and it works with all kinds of fresh or salt water fish; it works equally well on surfclod or live bait).

Here's what fishermen say about my spray:

"What you say is true. I caught fish like crazy — it really works!"

K.S. Evansville, Ind.

"I used your oil and found it hard to believe — but for it anyone, cause I'm not very lucky. After one day, I'm a believer — caught Snook and Sea Bass — it was easy!"

D.D. Naples, Fla.

"I always keep a can in my tackle box. It's fantastic!"

When it comes to covering sports, the men behind the mikes in the TV booth are big winners in the money game.

Howard "The Mouth" Cosell far outdistances his colleagues in salary — earning a cool $1 million a year.

"People tune him in because they love to hate him, yet he is undoubtedly the highest-paid sportscaster in America," said an insider.

"Cosell has a following simply because people like to see him make a fool of himself. He's a total wind-bag." And a wealthy one.

Brent Musburger recently signed a four-year pact with CBS for a reported $600,000-plus a year.

"He's popular because he covers a broad spectrum of viewers without offending many of them," said a sports consultant.

"Brent is also a smooth, show-biz type who's very polished and knows his stuff."

NBC's Bryant Gumbel — who rakes in about $600,000 annually — also comes from the same mold, said the consultant.

"Bryant has risen very fast in the last few years — and he's still climbing."

As ABC's host of the Olympics coverage and "Wide World of Sports," Jim McKay draws an annual salary of $500,000. "His handling of the Israeli massacre at the 1972 Olympics in Munich gained him a great deal of prestige," said the consultant. "Jim is at the top."

Also making $500,000 a year is New York's popular sportscaster Marv Albert of NBC.

Albert is versatile and he is an "excellent play-by-play man," said a knowledgeable source.

Among other well-known TV sportscasters who are filling their pocketbooks with big bucks are: Pat Summerall, CBS, $400,000 a year; Don Meredith of ABC, $350,000; Frank Gifford, ABC, $350,000; Phyllis George Brown, CBS, $350,000; Keith Jackson of ABC, $350,000; Warner Wolfe, CBS-NY, $300,000; Jimmy

"The Greek" Snyder, CBS, $300,000; Chris Schenkel of ABC, $250,000; Fran Tarkenton, ABC, $200,000; and Curt Gowdy, ABC, $160,000.

"The salaries of sports announcers have skyrocketed the last few years because of the huge audiences they draw," said an insider.

The consultant added that sports have become a lucrative form of show business — and the announcers have become personalities in their own right.

"It's rather ridiculous that these announcers are actually making more money than most of the players they report on," said a source, "but that's show biz."

The Best & Worst-Dressed Stars at the Oscars

MARY TYLER MOORE
"It was too young for her, but she's stuck in a time warp."

DIANA ROSS
"Fabulous, wonderful and exciting."

DOLLY PARTON
She looked more like a Mae West stand-in."

ANGIE DICKINSON
"A great disappointment and 10 years too late."

GOLDIE HAWN
"Ruffled disaster worse than standard Goldie."

SALLY FIELD
"It looked like her toga was held up with chewing gum."

Dolly Parton looked like a "Mae West stand-in" . . . Brooke Shields proved "she has no fashion sense" . . . and Angie Dickinson's violet dress was "10 years too late."

Those were some of the scorching indictments handed down by famed fashion designer Mr. Blackwell on top female stars at the recent Academy Awards.

By ANGELA BROOKS

Only a few big names were spared. Blackwell praised Diana Ross' "ravishingly elegant" dress and Mary Tyler Moore's one-puffed-sleeve creation.

However, the designer declared that most of the actresses were guilty of "rubber stamp" fashion.

"There was no individuality," he scoffed. "Fashion-wise, the actresses are floundering. They don't have the direction and discipline it takes to develop a personal look."

In an exclusive ENQUIRER interview, Blackwell gave his verdicts on the best and worst:

WORST DRESSED

Dolly Parton: "She let us all down by looking more like a Mae West stand-in than herself with that low-cut sequined dress. Her hair was in shreds. She looked like she'd combed it with a lawnmower."

Brooke Shields: "She proved that she has no fashion sense at all. Her cream tulle Alice in Wonderland dress reminded me of stale icing on a once delicious cake."

Angie Dickinson: "Her violet satin dress was a great disappointment, pathetically wrong—and 10 years too late. Everything was hanging and swinging from the earrings on down. She made believe she looked gorgeous but she only fooled herself."

Sally Field: "It looked like her cream toga was being held up with chewing gum. She was a washed-out Norma Rae but in the movie she intentionally looked bad."

Goldie Hawn: "She was a ruffled disaster. It's hard to imagine how this could be worse than standard Goldie fashion—but it is. And her hair was an unmitigated disaster. Didn't she brush it when she jumped out of the shower?"

BEST DRESSED

Diana Ross: "Her soft, black off-the-shoulder spangled gown was fabulous, wonderful and exciting. This year's crown goes to her for a ravishingly elegant dress."

Mary Tyler Moore: "Bravo, she obviously tried hard with her one-puffed-sleeve gown. There's no question it was too young for her, but she's stuck in a time warp at 23."

BROOKE SHIELDS
"She proved that she has no fashion sense at all."

11 Dogs — And Only 1 Is Real

Here's a woman who's really gone to the dogs! Margaret Griffiths, shown with her husband Michael and their "pets," doggedly pursues a strange hobby. She makes replicas of dogs that are amazingly lifelike.

In fact, only one of the dogs in this photo is real! The others are all creations of the Wakefield, England, woman.

The cuddly pups she puts out seem so alive that even her four living dogs are often deceived and bark at them.

An animal lover, Griffiths has been making these replicas for 16 years, using everything from a loam-backed fur fabric rug to imitation Swedish lamb coat material.

Which dog is the authentic living animal in this photo? It's Tula the dachshund, shown in Mrs. Griffiths' right hand.

We see how much a man has and we envy him; if we could see how little he enjoys, we would pity him.

Nasty J.R. of 'Dallas' Is a Nice Guy as a Husband

Larry Hagman's role as the dastardly J.R. Ewing on "Dallas" has made him the nicest of husbands off-screen, says his wife Maj.

"He's so nasty when he's working that he has to be extra nice when he comes home just to balance things out," she said.

"Larry is the most moral man I know."

"I have never known him to hurt anybody."

"If he hurts somebody unintentionally, his life is misery until he can clear it up."

Maj (pronounced MAY), 47, has been married to the 40-year-old actor for 28 years and they have two grown-up children.

She is a successful businesswoman — a designer of whirlpool baths — and is also the family plumber, cook and handyman.

"Larry and I are completely different."

"He's very outgoing and takes life a lot easier than I do. I'm a workaholic."

She says that her nice-guy husband wouldn't have a clue how to be as conniving as the merciless oil tycoon he portrays on TV.

"Larry goes to work for pleasure and comes home the same nice person."

"J.R. doesn't get to him at all. This role has been terrific for him."

"He can act out anything he has ever wanted to do and say in his lifetime."

"After reading his latest script at home, he says, 'You won't believe what they're going to have me do now. It's a laugh. It's such fun.'"

"People always ask me if Larry has any of J.R.'s awful habits."

"I tell them, 'If he were that bad, would I still be here after 28 years?'"

"MOST MORAL MAN I KNOW," says Maj Hagman, who has been married to Larry for 28 years.

TV — BEHIND THE SCREENS

Screen Reunion for Farrah and Lee

By ALASTAIR GREGOR and PAUL JENKINS
Anxious to help revive his old buddy's career, Frank Sinatra will appear on Dean Martin's upcoming NBC special. It's normally unheard of for Frank to guest on the tube these days — but Dean personally asked Ol' Blue Eyes for the special favor. They've patched things up since their falling out at the Reagan inaugural.

"Dynasty" beauty Linda Evans' hubby, wealthy real estate broker Stan Herman, has finally filed for divorce — three years after the couple split. And in an unusual move, Herman's asking the court to make Linda give up his last name. He wants her to officially become Linda Evans again.

Farrah Fawcett and Lee Majors are reunited — but it's strictly business. Lee asked his lovely ex-wife to appear briefly in his TV pilot, "The Fall Guy," and she agreed. Friends say the two are pals now — but there's no renewal of their romance.

Jack Klugman forced the set of "Quincy" to shut down for over a week. He refused to work, saying he hasn't gotten one penny in royalties for "Quincy" merchandise — including lunch boxes, T-shirts and posters — guaranteed in his contract. Studio execs think Klugman really wants out of his contract. He's signed through next season, but would like to get out now.

John Ritter's Bloomin' Funny

John Ritter loves flowers — and that's saying a mouthful. The "Three's Company" star was carrying a centerpiece from a Hollywood celestine when he took a chop for photographers.

Painful knee injury for "Laverne & Shirley" costar Cindy Williams. Filming a scene in which she and Penny Marshall break into a department store, Cindy slammed her left knee while shimmying through an air conditioning duct. Her knee swelled like a balloon, but it was only bruised. Spunky Cindy finished the scene — mauling in pain all the time.

Wild "Taxi" costar Andy Kaufman retired from his zany road-wrestling escapades — but at a recent mud wrestling championship in LA, one of the female competitors threw some slime at him and challenged Kaufman to a match. She dragged Andy into the goopy ring with her, and after the two slugged through a round in the mud, the refs called it a draw.

Thanks to a boost in ratings the last time he guested on "Flo," Vic Tayback, who plays Mel the cook on "Alice," will make even more special appearances on the spin-off series, starring Fely Holiday. Producers are desperately trying to save "Flo."

'8 Is Enough' Gal Saddles Herself With Singing Career

When singing "Eight Is Enough" costar Susan Richardson launched her new band at an LA club she brought a friend with her — this carved wooden horse. Susan's had the horse since she was a youngster. She says it's a good luck charm.

Blonde Stunner Shapes Up for Poster Stardom

With her form gracing TV screens across the country, "Too Close for Comfort" costar Lydia Cornell has a new goal — she wants to conquer America's walls. This steamy new poster shot could do it.

From the cancellation bin, and hope Tayback can give it the shot in the arm it needs.

The Startling Truth About Bing Crosby's Early Career

In his climb to the top, Bing Crosby projected the image of a warm, outgoing, wholesome young singer. But to many who really knew him then, he was a selfish, irresponsible booze hound. Here, in another exclusive ENQUIRER installment from the soon-to-be-published book "Bing Crosby: The Hollow Man," authors Donald Shepherd and Robert Slatzer reveal how Crosby, as an up-and-coming singer, missed shows because he was passed out drunk in the gutter.

By DONALD SHEPHERD and ROBERT SLATZER

During his first crack at stardom, Bing Crosby was a falling-down drunk.

Bing was a member of the singing trio The Rhythm Boys who appeared with the Paul Whiteman band. Although Whiteman was impressed with Bing's talents, he was incensed at Bing's drinking and his indifference to responsibilities.

Numerous people who were around Crosby in those early days — including a couple of musicians who were with Whiteman — recalled that Crosby caused Whiteman a lot of grief. Bing frequently missed engagements and on at least three occasions Whiteman sent someone out looking for him and found him — literally — in the gutter, passed-out drunk in front of some speakeasy or other watering hole.

On one occasion in Philadelphia, they found him in the gutter during winter, lying in the snow and ice. That's the way booze affected Bing, but he wouldn't stop drinking.

Instead of taking The Rhythm Boys on tour with the band in 1927, Whiteman booked the trio on the vaudeville circuit, possibly because of Crosby's penchant for doing what he damn well pleased, and without the knowledge of his partners Harry Barris or Al Rinker.

During these vaudeville days, Bing still didn't change — as one drunken episode clearly showed.

"We had just finished our date at the Orpheum Theater in Chicago," Rinker recalled, "and our next stop was at Rockford, Ill. So Barris and I took the train that night to Rockford after the show. Instead of joining us, Bing went out that night with a girl he had met in San Francisco named Peggy Bernier, an actress. She and Bing had a little romance going."

"Bing told us he'd stay behind and catch the early-morning train to Rockford." But when he failed to show for the afternoon performance, Barris and Rinker ad-libbed while playing the two pianos and singing. "The audience didn't seem to mind, so we got by that performance," said Rinker.

"But when it came time for the next one, Bing was still missing. Now we were really worried. We had no way of locating him. So Barris and I did the second show and got by. When it was over, I called our hotel, and lo and behold, Bing answered."

"What had happened is that he and Peggy had gone out on the town the night before, and Bing really got loaded. He was drunk when Peggy put him on the train, and he slept all the way to Rockford — about 80 miles or so from Chicago."

"When he got off the train, he was still falling-down drunk and the cops picked him up and threw him in jail. He was in jail all day — loaded — and they wouldn't let him make any calls.

"Here we were, knocking ourselves out doing the shows, and he was in jail. Barris and I were furious."

When Bing and The Rhythm Boys were in Hollywood to appear in a career-boosting movie musical with the Paul Whiteman band in 1930, Bing again got into serious trouble with the bottle.

It happened when Bing, after drinking a few, was driving a date home late at night when his car collided with another auto.

The girl was thrown over the windshield and onto the pavement. Fortunately, the girl wasn't seriously injured — though she was bloody and unconscious. Bing carried her into a nearby hotel lobby and got someone to attend to her wounds before returning to the scene of the accident, where he was promptly arrested for driving under the influence and hauled down to the Lincoln Heights Jail for the night.

Whiteman had Bing bailed out the next morning, and he was back on the set at Universal. He reported to court a week later for his misdemeanor.

But he had spent the morning playing golf, as usual, and showed up in court still dressed in his golfing knickers, loud socks, and even louder sweater. When his case was called, the judge studied his report for a moment, then said, "It says here, HBD him transferred to the Hollywood division, from which he was allowed out every day to work on the film, and locked up again at night."

His daily release made it possible to do The Rhythm Boys segments of the film, but Whiteman either couldn't or wouldn't hold up the filming of a feature solo, "Song of the Dawn," which had been promised to Bing. Instead it was shot with John Boles while Bing was locked up at the county jail. Bing was bitterly disappointed.

Bing continued to hit the bottle and because of his intolerance for alcohol, it put him out of commission for two or three days at a time. Usually, he couldn't work while drinking, but on at least one occasion he tried.

Dr. J. DeWitt Fox, now a prominent neurosurgeon in Los Angeles, recalls attending a function at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel at which Gus Arnheim's orchestra appeared. Bing was the band's soloist.

Dr. Fox says that when it came time for Bing to do his first number, he stood pale and unsteady at the mike while the orchestra played the introduction to his song.

Then, as Bing opened his mouth to sing, he vomited — on his suit front, his shoes and on several members of his socialite audience who had gathered close to the bandstand to hear him sing.

NEXT WEEK: The time hooky-playing, pastry-stealing Bing was locked up in jail — on his mother's orders.

Across Burning Deserts & Rugged Mountains ... Dog Treks 500 Miles to Rejoin Family

By DAVID BARRITT

A brave dog named Blackie made an incredible journey — almost 500 miles across mountain and desert — to find the family she loved.

Amazingly the courageous dog spent over 2½ years trudging rugged terrain in blistering heat and bone-chilling cold to be joyously reunited with her owners.

"It is incredible," said Blackie's owner William Douglas, "that a dog could travel 500 miles to find her family."

Nicol — It's real proof of a dog's devotion to man.

The heartwarming story of dog spent over 2½ years trudging rugged terrain in blistering heat and bone-chilling cold to be joyously reunited with her owners.

"It is incredible," said Blackie's owner William Douglas, "that a dog could travel 500 miles to find her family."

200 Douglas to Port Elizabeth, 400 miles away. But a promised job offer fell through, and in January 1978 Nicol was forced to head back to Paarl.

The poverty-stricken family, unable to afford the cost of caring for a dog, sadly decided to leave their beloved Blackie with friends in Port Elizabeth.

None of us ever forgot Blackie," Nicol said. "She had been a very special dog to us and we all missed her. My son Douglas was particularly hurt. He was always blamed for leaving Blackie behind."

The day after the Nicol family left, the dog behind Blackie ran away from the family's friends in Port Elizabeth. And on the last August, Blackie came home, her tail wagging happily.

"It was absolutely amazing," Nicol said. "Douglas came running and said Blackie was outside in the street. I dashed out and there she was. Her coat was matted, she was so thin you could see all her bones sticking out, and her paws were deeply cracked."

"But there was no doubt at all it was Blackie. Blackie had also brought a surprise gift for the family. Barking excitedly, she led them to six tiny puppies she had given birth to in a nearby shrub thicket."

Dr. Pietie van der Merwe, a veterinarian who had inserted a steel pin in Blackie's left hind leg after an accident years ago, confirmed that it was the same dog he had operated on. It's 100 percent certain this is the same dog, he said.

To return to Paarl from Port Elizabeth, Nicol said, the part-timer dog had to travel through some of the densest forest in South Africa over mountain passes and through the Klein Karoo Desert.

That she survived is a miracle, he told THE ENQUIRER. "I can only believe that God must have had a hand in it."

You can gain respect from the people you meet by following a few simple tips, reveals psychiatrist Emory Brenner.

The first step is to stand erect and relatively still, he reminds.

"This immediately shows you're in control of yourself. Don't fidget. When you greet someone, let the other person walk further toward you than you walk toward him, said Dr. Brenner.

You'll be subconsciously showing the other person that you're the type who holds his ground.

As you approach someone, look squarely at him even if he doesn't look at you. Don't let your gaze waver. You're showing that you are sure of yourself.

Don't use gestures which subconsciously show you're afraid. "Don't cross your arms in front of your body or nod your head or look away. This betrays uncertainty.

Project your voice and speak in sharp, clear concise sentences.

By beating around the bush or waffling, you're indicating that you are unsure of yourself.

Make the other person feel important by addressing him by name and asking questions about him.

"This will make the other person look up to you."

Dr. Brenner, director of the Institute for Group Dynamics in Roslyn, N.Y., added: "Dress very neatly. Untidy, sloppy clothes reveal a lack of self-respect."

And if you don't respect yourself, then others certainly won't. "The best way to learn how to get respect is simply to watch people who use the tips."

The guy was a little weird to begin with but he said he loved her and so, reluctantly, she married him.

"I'll prove how much I love you," he insisted. "I'll climb the highest mountain. I'll swim the longest river. I'll cross the widest desert. And for you."

He set out to do all this and finally she divorced him. "But why?" a friend asked. "He loved you so much."

"Yeah, yeah," she said. "But he was never home."

HERE'S WHY NUTRITIONAL LIFE CORP. MAKES THIS UNUSUAL OFFER—

Even though a professional writer on nutritional science and nutritional research topics, this offer really surprised me. And my final reaction was this simple question: Why were you so sure of the prostate healing powers of ZN Mega-Mineral Tea that you're willing to make such a major offer?

HERE'S WHAT THEY TOLD ME—

Nutritional Life Corp. was ready with an answer. And was backed by published documentation. This is a milestone research project on prostate disease's look place at the Cook County Hospital in Chicago. It was directed by researchers of the nationally famous Carlin for the Study of Prostatic Diseases. It involved 750 patients who suffered from a variety of prostate problems. And took five years to complete. The results gave a major re-direction to conventional thinking about prostate relief. And that was because it suggested that prostate problems could best be corrected naturally without surgery. This is what the Cook County prostate research project revealed: The ailments in ZN Mega-Mineral Tea are absolutely necessary for a healthy prostate gland. Most prostate patients are low in the elements contained in ZN Mega-Mineral Tea.

'Love Boat' Crew's Secret Pact

By JOHN SOUTH and RICHARD TAYLOR

In a dramatic closed-door meeting, the stars of TV's "Love Boat" hammered out a secret pact to bury past differences and keep the hit series sailing to success.

Worried about the future of the show and wanting to keep their huge salaries, the cast agreed to keep a lid on their tempers, which insiders say have flared for months over numerous disputes, including:

- Battling egos among the show's top stars
- Poorly written scripts
- The stars' fruitless demands for more meaty roles.
- A steady stream of what the cast considers second-rate guest stars.

Tensions on the set became so severe that "Captain" Gavin MacLeod, desperately trying to cool off his fellow cast members, seized control of the helm. He called his costars together for a private meeting just before the show went on a spring break February 20.

With costars Lauren "Jillie" Tewes, Bernie "Doe" Kopell, Ted "Isaac" Lange and Fred "Gopher" Grandy seated around the set's captain's table, MacLeod put his list down and delivered a no-punches-pulled speech, say insiders. He demanded that they all act like the big, happy family viewers see on the top-10-rated show.

"Look, guys, we've been running each other down and ripping each other apart," MacLeod said, according to a longtime member of "The Love Boat" production staff, who learned all the details of the secret cast meeting.

Let's cut out all this bitching and backbiting here and now! Nobody at this table ever made so much money in their lives — or ever will again.

"We need this show and we need each other. Let's try to act like this happy crew we're supposed to be."

"This show has given me homes in Santa Monica, Palm Springs and New York, and it's supporting my seven children. Every time I turn around, a rerun check has arrived in the mail."

"We know the standard of writing is lousy, and it's true we'd all rather have more dramatic roles in the show, but the bottom line is we make a lot of money from the show, so let's cut out all this stuff and get on with it."

There was some squabbling among the cast members during the meeting. The source said Tewes angrily charged that MacLeod is seeking to expand his role, and "trying to make this into The Gavin MacLeod Show!"

But one by one, the source said, MacLeod's costars all fell into line, agreeing there was no sense in sinking the treasure ship that had made them all household names.

"The cast listened intently to Gavin," the source said. "And Bernie Kopell responded, 'Gavin's right. We've all been behaving like kids.'"

Despite all of our problems we've got to stick together. This is a long-running show, and one of the most profitable ever on television.

"The Love Boat" has been a solid hit since the series was launched in 1977 — and is consistently in the top 10 this season.

According to another Hollywood insider, Ted Lange, who plays the ship's happy-go-lucky bartender, told the group, "I'm very appreciative of the vast amount of money I've made from this show. I've even turned down other parts because there is no way they can pay me the same kind of money."

"I must be the highest-paid bartender in the world."

An informed industry source added, "At the end of the secret meeting the entire cast agreed to bury the hatchet, to keep the show running smoothly."

Not all the problems have been ironed out to everyone's satisfaction. Sources on the set say the cast members are still unhappy with many aspects of the show, but all have agreed to live with the bad points while reaping the benefits.

There are ego problems, especially among Gavin, Bernie and Lauren, said an agent at a top Hollywood agency.

"They each want to be in the limelight — and have bigger parts."

"And they can't believe some of the guest stars are so incompetent. Cast members are convinced that if an actor is a personal friend of the producers, even if he's got the acting ability of a chimp, he's got the part."

The stars' long-standing complaint that their parts are too small was dramatically demonstrated when MacLeod exploded on the set shortly before the secret meeting, a cast member's friend revealed.

"I'm fed up with this!" the friend quoted MacLeod as saying. "We have only one script on which story variations are made each week. I'm sick of smiling like an imbecile!"

"Surely the captain of this huge ship can have a dramatic scene to play now and then!"

But despite their private complaints, all members of the cast are determined to keep "The Love Boat" afloat — and on a steady course to more prosperous years on the air.

"They recognize it would be suicidal to kill the goose that has laid so many golden eggs," said the former staff member. "They've come to see 'The Love Boat' not as a cruise ship, but as a Spanish galleon full of riches."

As another former behind-the-scenes staffer, "They're not going to give up the ship. The cast of 'The Love Boat' knows they've got a good thing."

CRUISE SHIP "Island Princess" on which some on-set segments of "Love Boat" have been filmed. Cast members now see the "Love Boat" as a "Spanish galleon full of riches."

SMILE OF SUCCESS: Ship's bartender Ted Lange is among stars who reap huge incomes from the hit series.

The show has financially rewarded all of them very handsomely and there's no way they're going to throw that away.

Gavin has installed in their minds that the show's a gold mine, and it's up to the cast and crew to make sure things run smoothly, so they can reap all the benefits the show has to offer.

There have been reports of mysterious islands which appear and disappear so rapidly that their existence cannot be confirmed with any degree of certainty.

One of the most baffling is Dougherty Island.

It has been reported in numerous positions within a wide radius of the northeast island from any inhabited land in the world. No one has ever visited it because the swells are often 70 feet and the terrain is not suitable for aircraft to land.

Since 1858, the British Admiralty has sent out an aircraft charting expedition to check on some of the vanishing islands, including Dougherty. On one trip in the late '30s, Flight Lieut. Geoffrey Briggs and a pilot named Murray left from St. Helena, 1,200 miles west of Africa.

For many hours they flew over the gray wastes of the Atlantic until they came to the territory where Dougherty should have existed. Lieut. Briggs kept his eyes focused through binoculars and, suddenly, his forehead wrinkled in dark puzzlement.

Sure enough the airman had sighted the island, but the odd happenings down below were mind-shattering. The two after amazement of the island, the seaplane they approached Dougherty Island.

er by thick skin. Their legs seemed to be quite short, as were their arms and the shoulders looked remarkably heavy for their size.

Outstanding was the noticeably bulging buttocks — in contrast to an apparent average height of about four feet tall. Their skulls were massive, with sloping foreheads and very exaggerated lips. Both men and women had been saved for a join covering, and the complexion gave the impression of being a blending of brownish-black and reddish yellow.

Those in the center of the small island were moving about while the swallowing sea was steadily diminishing their habitat by the minute. The airman observed that the tiny figures were not only entering the water but some were disappearing beneath the billowing waves!

The airplane was not equipped with floats, but even if it had been, it would have been inadvisable to try to land on that rolling green ocean. The men, completing their mission began the voyage back to home. They told their story before the incredulous ears of their superiors.

Could the airman have hallucinated what they had witnessed, because as far as is known, Dougherty island has not reappeared since? Others, checking for the Admiralty have flown over the site but have not seen the island or its inhabitants. So Dougherty Island has been altered on Admiralty maps with "E.D." meaning that its existence is doubtful.

The teacher cited instances in Africa, where after liberation had been taught to read and write, they felt themselves too good to do manual work.

"That's easy," a boy answered in all seriousness. "The government would pay people not to go to college."

Jenny Darren and I were doing a Hollywood Squares show one day and he asked, 'How the hell do you look so young all the time?' I told him about my wife's products and he said, 'I've got to use them ever since. My stunt man, George Sawaya, told me one day—I have to stay looking as young as you do and I'm getting older.' He's been using the products and now he's looking younger than me!"

QUESTION: "Do movie actors have more problems with their skin than other people?"

ANSWER: "Yes and No. Actors have makeup to remove and harsh lights to contend with but anyone who wants younger, healthier looking skin should take care of it."

Robert Wagner & Natalie Wood — Still a Couple of Lovebirds

Caught by the camera in a kiss (left), Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood look more like honeymooners than "old marrieds" as they share a romantic candlelight dinner in Paris. Love lights still sparkle from the eyes of Natalie, 43, as Wagner, 51, looks on adoringly (right). First married in 1957, the couple divorced five years later then remarried in 1972 and have been living happily together ever since.

Lucky Pair Discovers Their Bedroom Lamp Is Worth $700,000

In an incredible stroke of luck, an ordinary-looking bedroom lamp with a pink shade turned out to be a precious 500-year-old Chinese vase worth an eye-popping $700,000.

"I've made some discoveries before — but never on this scale," glowed Colin Mackay, Chinese ceramics expert at Sotheby's, the famed London auction house.

An elderly French couple thinking of selling some furnishings asked Mackay to go through their house and tell them what items were suitable for sale. Walking into a guest bedroom, he immediately spotted the vase under a pink shade.

"I stood back and said to myself, 'My God, look at that,'" said Mackay.

He immediately went to the owners and told them how rare and valuable it was. They had received it as a present many years ago — and had no idea it was worth so much money. They were surprised — and delighted.

The only other vase like this one known to exist is in a museum in Taiwan and a badly damaged Mackay said.

The new owner of the Ming vase is Hong Kong business executive T.Y. Chao, who

Dr. Robert Schuller, pastor and host of the Sunday morning TV show "Hour of Power," always sees the positive, the uplifting, and the inspiring side to every situation. Here, in the first installment of an exclusive ENQUIRER series from the book "Robert Schuller's Life Changers," Dr. Schuller recounts stories about Babe Ruth and Houdini — stories which will help you become a positive thinker.

By Dr. ROBERT SCHULLER
It was in 1927 The Yankees were playing in Philadelphia. Babe Ruth came up to the plate for the first time. Babe missed the first pitch, strike. The second pitch, another strike. Swish, strike three!

The second time he came up to bat he struck at the first one strike one — struck at the second one, strike two, and the third one, strike three. Now it was the eighth inning and the Yankees were behind 3 to 1. The bases were loaded. Thirty-five thousand fans were on their feet as Babe Ruth came up to bat for the third time. Everyone knew that Lefty Grove could strike him out again.

First pitch, strike, second pitch, he swung so hard that when he missed, he stumbled and fell on the ground. He picked his pudgy body up, dusted himself off, put his cap back on and waited for the third pitch.

It was so fast, nobody even saw it. All they heard was a crack, and that ball went out of the stadium across the street from the park for one of the longest balls ever hit in the major leagues.

As the feathers on the bases came running in, and when Babe Ruth came across home plate, the Home Run King took his hat off to the fans and smiled.

You remember him — Babe Ruth, the Home Run King. But how many of you remember the name of the guy who still today holds the record for strikeouts — 3,307? His name too is Babe Ruth.

Yes, Babe Ruth would never have become the Home Run King if he had feared the failures of strikeouts.

A little town in the British Isles decided to challenge (and perhaps embarrass) the great Houdini. This town had just completed an escape-proof jail, and so the townfolk invited Houdini to come to see if he could break out.

He accepted the challenge. He was allowed to enter the jail in his street clothes. People said they saw the locksmith turn the lock some strange way, and then with the clang of steel, everybody left him alone to work.

Houdini had hidden a long flexible steel rod in his belt, which is what he used to try to trip the lock. He worked for 30 minutes.

He kept his car close to the lock — 45 minutes, and then an hour passed, he was perspiring. After two hours, he was exhausted. He leaned against the door, and to his amazement it fell open. They had never locked the door! It was their trick on the great escape artist!

The door was locked only in Houdini's mind. And that's the only place it was locked! Some of you think that you can't overcome your problem. The only place where it is impossible is in your thinking. That's the only thing that's locked!

After 33 Years ... Leading Black Judge Favors Death Penalty

Following 33 years of openly opposing the death penalty, one of America's leading black judges has changed his mind.

After much soul-searching, I have the abiding feeling that capital punishment does deter crime," said Justice Oscar Adams, the first black ever appointed to Alabama's Supreme Court.

In a statement defending Alabama's death penalty, 36-year-old Justice Adams revealed that he has "come 180 degrees in my thinking" since the early 1970s, when he was a civil rights lawyer.

I believe that it deters enough crime that it should not be withheld from the arsenal of weapons of a civilized society to combat crime," he stated.

Asthma! A wheezing, coughing attack that leaves the victim fighting for breath.

Nine million Americans suffer from it and nearly 2,000 die every year.

Authorities say as many as 30,000 people a day stay home from work because of asthma, at a cost of billions.

To learn the latest that science knows about asthma, THE ENQUIRER talked to top doctors specializing in the problem. What follows is a rundown on who gets asthma, what causes it, what is being done about it.

The Disease

Asthma obstructs the air passages to the lungs, making it difficult for the sufferer to draw a breath. But asthma is also "reversible" meaning that it comes and goes in cycles. Usually the patient appears completely healthy but sometimes the air passages suddenly get so small the victim can barely take a breath. After an attack the passages return to their proper size and breathing goes back to normal, said Dr. Robert Strunk.

The airways are obstructed in three ways, said Dr. Michael Kaliner, head of the Allergic Diseases Section

Racers Have a Handle on Thrills

In the action-packed sport of bicycle motocross racing, there are all kinds of ways to miss a jump and take a spectacular spill, as these exciting photos show. Kirk Claveau hangs tight in the saddle, trying to regain control of his bike in what appears to be a losing cause (left), on a track in Arlington, Calif. Steve Molaguti assumes frog-like position (below) as he goes airborne after zooming up a dirt ramp on a motocross track near Green Pond, N.J. Stu Thomsen's foot slipped off the pedal and his bike flipped skyward (right) as he sped through a race course in Garden Grove, Calif. In motocross racing, bikers use their own muscles and pedal power to whip through an 850-foot winding course crammed with thrilling jumps and tough turns.

ASTHMA!

What Causes It, Who Gets It—& The Treatments of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases in Washington.

The airways can swell making passages narrower the muscles that circle the airways can constrict, making the airways tighter and excessive mucous secretion builds up in the airways, also cutting down on the flow of air.

Who Gets It

No one is immune, at any age. Some children have their first asthma attack at 3 or 4 months of age," said Dr. Strunk.

Added Dr. Kaliner, "Seventy percent of asthmatic patients have their disease by the time they're 30, but we see asthma developing for the first time in people in their 50s, 60s and 70s."

What Triggers Attacks

Dr. Strunk said the five most common causes of an attack are infection, exercise, allergies, irritants (such as cigarette smoke, air pollution and strong odors) and emotions (laughing, crying, temper tantrums), all of which are associated with increased air movement in the airways.

"Some women say that during their menstrual period their asthma is worse. We don't know exactly why, but there is a definite pattern," said Dr. Sheldon Spector, senior staff physician at the National Jewish Hospital/National Asthma Center in Denver.

Duration

"Asthma attacks vary in length and depend on what precipitates them," said Dr. Strunk.

"A person can be totally well, walk into a room where there is a cat and start to wheeze.

If the person then walks out of the room and takes some medication, the attack could be gone in a very short time.

Said Dr. Kaliner,

"When asthmatics are sick enough to have to go to the emergency room for help, it usually takes two or three days to get their body back to normal."

Cure

"We don't promise cures," said Dr. Kaliner, adding that even if an asthmatic hasn't had an attack in 10 years, it doesn't mean he or she is cured.

"The asthma is there. It is dor-

At one time we thought children outgrew asthma. But now we know they never do. Something triggers it in an adult and the attacks start all over again."

Treatments

First of all, asthma sufferers should remove anything that may trigger an attack, said Dr. Strunk, director of clinical services, pediatrics, at the Denver asthma center.

"You can eliminate pets from the household. Adults may have to stop smoking.

Also eliminate things that promote mold, such as dampness in basements.

Various drugs and allergy shots are used to treat asthma, and it is also advisable to drink a lot of fluids since fluids thin mucous secretions.

"Some exciting things have happened in the treatment of asthma," said Dr. Spector. "There has been a rediscovery of some old things. Many of the medications are given in pill form but asthmatic patients also use inhalers."

Said Dr. Kaliner, "The most recent treatment is the preparation of inhaled steroids that are not absorbed into the body."

"Some of these are deposited only in the lungs and work in the airways of the lungs. They don't cause any side effects."

In the last 10 years the capacity to treat asthma has improved dramatically.

"We understand much more than we ever did and specialists are able to treat asthmatics more effectively than ever before."

"We are getting better drugs and a better understanding of what triggers the disease. The future looks very promising."

Henry Fonda: I'm an Actor Today Thanks to Marlon Brando's Mom

Superstar Henry Fonda was pushed into his acting career — by Marlon Brando's mother who literally shoved him onto a stage when he was just 20.

It's true, said 75-year-old Fonda.

If it hadn't been for Do Brando shoving me into acting, I wouldn't have gone on.

When I was young, going into the theater never occurred to me. I had dropped out of college after my second year and I had come back to my home in Omaha.

"I didn't know what I was going to do.

Then Do Brando, a close friend of my family in Omaha called my mother Do was on the board at the Omaha Community Playhouse, and she told my mother she wanted to see me.

If I'd known she wanted to put me in a play, I wouldn't have gone.

"I was very shy. But I went, innocently and the director gave me a script.

I found myself cast in a play without being able to say 'Hey don't do this to me' When I got to rehearsal, I wondered how it all happened.

Then came the dreaded opening night and shy Henry stood trembling in the wings.

DO BRANDO. Shoved Henry Fonda into his first acting role.

Fonda's longtime friend, John Spranger recalls. Do shoved him out there saying, 'Come on, you can do it.' And once on the stage it all came to him and that started him off. From that night on this man never stopped acting.

Good News About Americans — We're Still Nice People

By DAVID WRIGHT

If you accidentally drop a letter on the sidewalk, someone will pick it up and mail it.

And it doesn't seem to matter whether you're in a big city or small town.

That's what ENQUIRER reporters found out after they deliberately "lost" 20 properly addressed and stamped letters in 20 cities and towns across the country.

In every case, each of the 20 letters was eventually retrieved by a passerby and mailed.

It took as little as five minutes in one case and as long as three hours in another instance.

Despite carrying a sack of groceries, a woman in Falls Church, Va., waded some 200 yards out of her way to put a lost letter in the mailbox.

Age played no factor in our study. The first person to come across a dropped letter in Church Hill, Tenn. was an elderly woman who took it to a nearby post office for mailing.

But in Saugatuck, Conn., where more than 50 people ignored a lost letter a boy about 8 years old finally picked it up and mailed it.

At a busy intersection in New York City, a letter lay on the sidewalk for an hour and 20 minutes — ignored by more than 40 people before a young couple mailed it.

A letter dropped in a parking lot in Steelville, Mo. was trampled on by several people and run over by at least four cars. It lay there three hours before a middle-aged woman deposited it in a mailbox 100 yards away.

But no matter how long the wait, all 20 letters were mailed — showing that Americans are still willing to lend a helping hand to strangers.

It is a mistake to let life become complicated. Life is really very simple, and only by thinking of it in simple terms can it be mastered.

When the worst drought in 44 years hit Oklahoma, an old well driller found a new way to cash in on...

BACKYARD WATER WELLS

BILL HARRINGTON

I've been drilling water wells in Oklahoma for about 15 years.

When I first saw the ad that claims a man can drill his own water well with a Hydra-Drill, I was extremely skeptical. I thought to myself — how can that be? That's impossible. It takes a big engine, it takes a big rig to drill a water well. But my curiosity kept nagging me, so I sent off for the information.

My daughter's boyfriend is a well driller over in Arizona. I showed him the Hydra-Drill literature. His first reaction was "I don't believe it. I don't believe a 3 hp. drill can do the same thing my 100 hp. drill does." But the more I studied it the more it sounded like a good idea.

A WATER SHORTAGE

Another thing on my mind was the drought. We're having the worst drought here since the dustbowl days back in the '30s. A lot of towns around here are out of water, and some of them have started water rationing. It's very hard on a lot of people, but business is good for well drillers. I've been thinking about buying another drill and putting my son Robert in business. He's 18 years old and he'd never worked on a drill before. I decided he could learn with a Hydra-Drill.

EASY SET UP

Now when I started out in the drilling business 15 years ago, I had a big drill that just about worked me to death. Later I got a rotary drill. It was easier to operate, but it took a day and a half to set up and drill a well in this area. You can't imagine how I felt when they delivered our Hydra-Drill. It was so compact, very simple. Robert and a young friend of his took it out and set it up in just a few minutes.

OUR FIRST HYDRA-DRILL WELL

The day we went out to drill our first well with the Hydra-Drill, I was all set to work with the boys and give them plenty of advice. However it was a very hot day about 100 degrees and once they got started drilling I could see they didn't need me standing right there so I went over and sat down in the shade of a tree. In about an hour they came over and I asked them if they were taking a break and they said no, they had just finished drilling the well.

It was amazing. They had drilled down forty-seven and a half feet and hit a layer of beautiful coarse sand — the kind that produces good water and a lot of it. They had drilled that well in less time than it takes me just to set up my big drill.

Later, I figured they had drilled that well with less than one gallon of gas. My big drill would burn at least fifteen gallons of gas for that job!

MAKES MONEY

The next day we drilled a well 115 feet deep through rock, and it went fast too. The Hydra-Drill really takes the hard work out of it. It's fast and economical, and that's what it takes to make money drilling wells.

Also the Hydra-Drill is so portable we can set up and drill anywhere. In the past I've met out on some jobs because people were afraid my big drill would tear up their yard. With the Hydra-Drill, we can drill without tearing up anything or making a mess. This is a big selling point to my customers.

I'm just grateful to have this Hydra-Drill. I've got my son started in a good business because he can make some money with it. I had thought another big drill, it's just cost thousands of dollars, and that's just not necessary because the Hydra-Drill does the job just as good. In fact, I figure we earned enough to pay for the Hydra-Drill the first week. From here on, we're in the blue chips.

GOOD, PURE WATER

I believe anyone can drill a well with a Hydra-Drill. Even if they just wanted to drill their own well they'd save money. It's simple and it's easy if they just read the instructions. And the best part about it is that you get good, pure water without all those chemicals in it and the water costs you, say 5 cents for a thousand gallons. You certainly can't buy city water for that. And it's a great feeling to have all the water you want even when the city is rationing water to everyone else.

The man who invented the Hydra-Drill really knew what he was doing. Modern technology is a wonderful thing, isn't it?

NOTE: Readers of this publication can get a big, fully illustrated information kit on the Hydra-Drill including a booklet, "How to Drill Your Own Well." Success Wrecks Marriage of '3's Company' Costar

By CHERIE HART

Seems it's splitville for "Three's Company" costar Richard Kline and his wife Kathleen Doyle — even though pals say he's still desperately in love with her.

Friends blame the breakup on the couple's separate careers. Both are doing great in show biz, but their hectic schedules are wrecking their marriage.

And that's why Kline, who plays the lecherous neighbor Larry on the show, finally decided to move out. But the split upset him so much he had to take a week off from

"Three's Company" to recover, reveal insiders.

"Richard is still madly in love with Kathleen, and the last thing he wants is a divorce," confided a friend of the actor.

"He loves her enough to separate for a while. They both want time to think about their marital difficulties."

"They don't want to throw in the towel just yet and let their marriage go down the drain."

"They have talked to friends about divorce, but they're willing to give this separation a chance."

Kline has been married to Kathleen for five years. But it wasn't until he hit a big on TV and Kathleen started landing juicy stage roles that trouble erupted, say insiders.

Kathleen used to come to every taping of "Three's Company," and she and Richard bought and furnished a house in Los Angeles, noted the friend.

"But then Kathleen's work started taking her back east... and she rarely came back to California. Both talk chance he had to save his marriage was to separate.

"He was so rattled about it that he asked people at 'Three's Company' to give him a week off from taping."

He flew to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, all by himself, just to mend his broken heart.

Commented a mutual friend of the couple:

"This is another sad case where success has ruined a marriage."

Pregnant Pause?

Quite a few years ago, shortly after moving to a new town, I remembered that it was time for my third polo shot. My wife suggested that I go to her obstetrician. At first I balked at the idea, but not knowing any other doctors in the community I broke down and made an appointment for the examination.

On the morning of my appointment I carefully took a seat in a corner of the waiting room, trying to appear inconspicuous among the women in maternity clothes.

A moment later the nurse entered, saying, "Good morning, Mr. LaMance. The doctor will be right with you. By the way, we must know for our records. Will this be your second or third?"

How to Make Vegetables Tempting & Tasty

"Vegetables? No thanks — pass the calsup."

For the homemaker who has heard this from her family too many times — and scraped vitamin-packed vegetables into the garbage pail — there's a help from Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, noted physician food expert and writer.

By GEORGE HUNTER

Dr. Lamb, the author of "What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health," has this advice for ENQUIRER readers.

It's easy to make vegetables more tempting and tasty. The secret is to use a little imagination in preparing them.

For example, when you're cooking vegetables in water drop in a bouillon cube or two. You'll find the flavor improved noticeably.

"Want your family to enjoy much vegetables as sliced cucumber and eggplant?" Dip them in nonfat milk then in flour and pan-fry them. The taste is delicious.

If your family finds corn bland try a pinch of curry powder. It makes a difference.

or lemon juice to the cooking water. It will add flavor too.

If your family insists on adding sour cream or butter to peas and potatoes, serve them with Worcestershire sauce instead. You may get delighted smiles while you keep down the calorie and cholesterol level. All vegetables are free of cholesterol.

"Boil vegetables in very little water and don't overcook them. Apply a lot of heat at first to prevent the loss of vitamins that occurs during slower cooking. After the first high heat, simmer the vegetables to tenderness."

Steaming them in a colander or strainer over boiling water is a good way to cook them healthfully.

"And try serving more vegetables raw to keep the vitamin content at a maximum."

Most people don't eat enough vegetables because they just don't like their taste. The way to change that is in the kitchen."

Top Astrologer's View of People Born Under the Sign of Taurus

Leading astrologer Carroll Righter, who's been casting horoscopes for glittering Hollywood stars since 1939, has published several books on the zodiac and reaches millions of people through his daily newspaper horoscope columns.

In this installment of a 12-part series written exclusively for The ENQUIRER, Righter takes an in-depth look at the personalities of ENQUIRER readers born between April 20 and May 20 under the sign of Taurus the Bull.

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Love of money — and an amazing ability to make it — are typical traits of people born under the sign of Taurus the Bull.

And you Taurians are also hardworking individuals who never are satisfied with being second-rate and you're always striving to be the best.

Persistence and a strong sense of purpose are key Taurus characteristics.

And they're certainly present in the personalities of two of TV's top newsmen, Mike Wallace and Tom Snyder — both born under the sign of Taurus.

You Taurians are not only adept at making money — you've developed a knack for living well while clinging to as much of your money as you can. This trait is exemplified in stars like Henry Fonda, James Stewart and Glenn Ford, who've amassed fortunes but spent it wisely while living in opulent homes.

You Taurians men always seem to fall in love with beautiful women, too.

One of Hollywood's most attractive actresses — Farrah Fawcett — was married to one Taurus, Lee Majors, and has had a romance with another, Ryan O'Neal. Bob of Taurus Bing Crosby's wives also were beautiful women.

If you were born under the sign of Taurus you tend to cling to your mate. If strong and personal relationships are shattered, you suffer a far heavier blow than people born under other signs.

Taurians have real strong minds and very rarely will change their opinions. However, you Taurus men reach decisions only after slowly weighing all alternatives — while Taurus women leap to a conclusion and stick to it.

Other stars who share your great Taurus personality are Ann-Margret, Candice Bergen, Herve Villechaise, Valerie Bertinelli, Fred Astaire, Anthony Quinn and Shirley MacLaine.

Your Likes And Dislikes

You hate to be alone — but at the same time, you deliberately try your best to keep your circle of friends small and extremely confidential.

You like to have friends who will love you and do just about anything for you. The slightest hint of insincerity in any of them will prompt you to reevaluate the friendship.

For your mate, you prefer a person with exciting talent and great career potential. You're bored with people who don't share your dynamic, go-getter attitude toward life. You have no interest at all in anyone who constantly feels sorry for you. You love money — and will never be short of cash because when your bankroll gets low, you'll find a project that brings the dollars rolling back in.

Your favorite color for clothing is powder blue. For backgrounds you like desert green.

The Taurus Man

Security is very important to you. You feel most secure when you're home with your family, and you're very possessive of your home.

For this reason, you don't like throwing the big parties where everyone is invited; you're more inclined to have small, intimate dinner parties attended by only a handful of close friends.

You're a demanding husband who insists that your wife handle the household and family affairs. But in return you reward her with loads of love and emotional support.

You prefer to reason with your children — rather than physically punish them. You insist on treating them in a mature manner.

You excel at jobs that require close attention and careful reasoning. Architecture, banking and law are fields in which you would be outstanding.

TYPICAL TAUREAN Lee Majors and his former wife Farrah Fawcett. He shows the Taurus's knack for marrying exceptionally beautiful women.

You don't like to travel, and you prefer sports that require little exertion such as fishing and golf. You dress conservatively and are a hearty eater.

The birth signs of others you can best depend on: For business: Libra, Sagittarius.

For advice: Capricorn, Pisces.

For friendship: Scorpio and Capricorn.

For love: Virgo, Capricorn.

The Taurus Woman

You expect your man to be financially well off, or at least in a career that will bring rich rewards before long.

And you won't let anything stand between you and something you truly want.

And once you make up your mind you want it, you'll take the fastest possible route to get it.

You're very possessive — and you demand that your mate adapt his life-style to fit yours rather than vice versa.

You become very enthusiastic about even the small projects.

Set your mind to it and you could be a highly successful career woman — with selling as your best field.

Your self-confidence and your go-getter personality also would make you a hit in the acting world.

You dress conservatively but with elegance.

And the birth signs of others you can best depend on are:

For business: Virgo, Scorpio, Aquarius.

For advice: Gemini, Sagittarius.

For friendship: Cancer and Virgo.

Dream Costs Buddy Ebsen $1 Million

Buddy Ebsen's lifelong dream of reviving an inspiring play he saw as a teenager has cost him a whopping $1 million.

He lost the bundle producing "Turn to the Right," which flopped in Beverly Hills in March.

Even a boost from President Reagan couldn't save the play, according to Buddy.

He said he saw "Turn to the Right" in a tent production when he was 18 years old in Orlando, Fla.

"I never stopped thinking about that play, the warmth, the goodness of it. I thought of it all these years," said the lanky 73-year-old star of TV's "Barnaby Jones."

"It was a dream of mine to see it again — and the only way I could see it again was to buy it and produce it myself."

But the play, a musical, bombed so badly that Buddy had to close it after only two weeks. He lost $1 million, according to the Hollywood trade paper Variety.

"I had to close it," said Buddy, "because I didn't want to wind up like Chrysler Corp."

Before the production folded, Buddy talked to his old friend Ronald Reagan. Buddy said the President called a drama critic at a West Coast newspaper "to ask him to help the show — but even that didn't keep it from folding."

And yet, despite his whopping losses, Buddy is not sorry he tried to resurrect the play. It's about a turn-of-the-century family, a wholesome story about right winning over wrong.

"I felt I had to put this play on," said Buddy. "I think the world today can use happy, innocent plays. The world can use better ideas than plays and movies today that are about whorehouses and people who kill.

"When I saw this play as a boy it made me feel the world was a great place, and I was lucky to be in it."

"I put two years into this play. It was a compulsion. I just had to do it."

$1 MILLION LOSS has not changed Ebsen's love for play.

had to strike a blow for what I believe. "And I believe as sure as there is a God in heaven that there's a life for this show — and I'm going to put it on again someday."

Will Someone Give Joe the Love & Support He Needs?

More than 100,000 special children in America have never felt the love, warmth and security of a permanent family. Their parents gave them up for adoption. But they haven't been adopted. And it's all because they are very special. They're children with mental, physical or emotional problems and all are still waiting for a family to call their very own. Here is another touching story of a special child who needs a home and family full of love.

By HILLARY HAMPSON

Eleven-year-old Joe is just learning to walk.

It's only been a matter of a few small steps so far. But for Joe, that's pretty exciting.

His adoption worker is convinced that Joe has the help, support and security of a permanent family of his own. Those first few steps could lead to a new and better life.

"When Joe was released for adoption and brought into foster care at the age of 2, he was more like a 3-month-old child," said his adoption worker.

"His mother had refused to feed him anything but milk. Joe suffered from malnutrition and had been hospitalized three times. He had not developed any motor skills and was diagnosed as a spastic quadriplegic."

Joe's mental development was also delayed and doctors later diagnosed that he suffers from cerebral palsy.

He attends a special school for handicapped and receives physical therapy at a cerebral, palsy treatment center.

He underwent surgery on his legs and he may need another operation on his ankle tendons which have atrophied.

Six months ago, he couldn't even sit alone without help and doctors said he would never walk. But now he's learning to walk although his legs start to cross and they're real stiff.

For a while he was even scared when ever he tried to take a step.

Joe, who has feeling in his legs, can get around on the floor without his wheelchair and is otherwise in good health. He can feed himself, drink through a straw and is toilet-trained.

He's a personable, cheerful good-looking child who loves music and has a keen memory for names, faces and dates. He can carry on a conversation and he uses complete sentences. Although he can't sit down and read a newspaper, he can identify some words.

I believe if someone adopted him and was stern and fair with him, he could learn to walk and do more for himself. An adoptive family should set goals for him — there's plenty of potential in him.

"Joe himself is highly motivated. If he can find an adoptive family who is also highly motivated, there's no telling how far Joe could progress."

God Sent Me on An Amazing Journey to Receive A Special Message — And to Bring You A Wonderful Gift...

the cross of ANTRON

"I am an ordained minister of The Knight Federation Church. The story of my amazing experience and how it led me to the Cross of ANTRON follows..."

MY NAME IS LYDIA STALAKER

and because my story may sound too fantastic to be believed at first hearing, I want you to know the following facts:

My story has been thoroughly checked and verified by numerous scientific organizations and by several prominent scientists including professors at the University of North Florida and the University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. James Harder, Director of Research at the prestigious Aerial Phenomena Research Organization and a member of a nationally known Blue Ribbon UFO Panel has said publicly that my story is true beyond a reasonable doubt.

Article after article has appeared in national and international newspapers and magazines. I have been interviewed in numerous news and national television shows. I have appeared on a Day of Living TV interview and numerous radio shows including CBS Mystery Theater. I have lectured at such major universities as Boston University and the North Florida University.

The reason I am giving you this detailed background is that I want you to have serious confidence in my story. For I have received a very serious cosmic life force flashes out of my hand when I am engaged in the process of healing others. I feel it right at right for more details in that

ANTRON HAS GIVEN ME A MISSION—

Antron says that because of the universe has been through a period of declining faith and there were sent here in spread was kidnapped and taken aboard an Alien Spacecraft from another galaxy where the Aliens gave me A MESSAGE FROM GOD to deliver to the people of this world. They also told me I would receive SEVEN POWERS FROM GOD. I am to use these powers to help mankind and to demonstrate His power so others may believe. I have been using these powers for GOD'S GLORY and His work.

Even now there is a book being readied about my experience filled with facts and proof, including a lie detector test and many other tests given me by doctors and scientists. The book will be called "The Antron Therapies" and it is to be published soon.

"Experts say my story is true beyond a reasonable doubt."

THE MESSAGE

About the spacecraft, here was a woman named Antron, who told me they came from a green planet, located in another galaxy and that she is hundreds of years old. But the really important thing Antron told me is that all people in the universe, whatever their origins, know God and His Powers.

I HAVE RECEIVED THE GIFT OF HEALING.

I was given the gift of healing. And since this happened, many of my healings have been carefully documented. When I was aboard the craft with Antron, I saw a strange insignia that was their "Symbol." Later, Antron inspired me to design the Symbol on a cross, so that Earth people could receive its benefits.

Also, I was told to wear this cross as a point of contact for God's Blessings and "Infinite Power" in my life.

On the cross, eight adjacent pyramids are connected by four simple pyramids. And at the center of the cross appears the galactic symbol of the Universal Life Force. It is a bio-magnetic cross, and Antron says that the universal life force leaps from this cross in flashes of fantastic energy — just as the universal life force flashes out of my hand when I am engaged in the process of healing others. I feel it right at right for more details in that the word about life in other galaxies — and about the universal power of faith and of God. They have given me an instrument to spread the word, and that instrument is "THE CROSS OF ANTRON."

Antron says that because of the universe has been through a period of declining faith and there were sent here in spread

"The cross was designed by Antron — and the Universal Life Force surges out from it in powerful waves of energy!"

ANTRON'S GIFT TO THE PEOPLE OF EARTH

Antron's gift to prove their prophecies in this remarkable cross. And they stated that wonderful things will happen to those who wear it, for they will share in its tremendous life force energy.

I make the cross available to help spread Antron's message of hope to the people of earth. And whatever money leaves my hand after paying my expenses for its activity, will go for this purpose.

But the power of the Cross of Antron is really a wonderful gift, and if Antron were not willing to share it, no amount of money on earth could buy it.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

Are you ill — or is a friend or member of your family sick?

Wear the Cross of Antron, and please write and tell me if your prayers are answered for relief in illness and of any blessings of healing.

Do you need any money because you are desperate and in debt? Do you need money to buy your family the necessities of life and to provide them a car and a secure home? Wear the Cross of Antron and let its life force enforce yours. And please write and tell me if your prayers are answered and if the

"The powers of this amazing cross are a gift from God, who has made all things. Through Antron, a being from another Galaxy it has now been brought to us, the people of Earth."

Here is why I believe the Cross of Antron has such amazing powers. It is a bio-magnetic cross, which means it is surrounded by a purging force field. Antron calls this the Universal Life Force. At the right is a simulation of an actual Kirlian photograph (a special photography process discovered by Para-psychologists in Russia) taken of my own hand during the process of healing. Topless Movie Scenes Shame 'Vega$' Star Stunning Phyllis Davis of TV's "Vegas" regrets appearing topless in two "horrible films," she made years ago, but adds she'd do it again for a "quality" flick.

"I'm very sorry I did those two earlier films," she said. "My scenes were vulgar because the movies were so bad."

It was back in the early '70s that I received an offer to do a lead in a picture, "Sweet Sugar," being filmed in Costa Rica. I had been in Hollywood only a short time, and was thrilled to get a lead role.

It didn't bother me if my breasts

Solitary Soul

She sits there waiting patiently
And wipes away a tear,
Wishing that a visitor
Would suddenly appear.

Someone to say, "How are you?"
And greet her with a smile,
Someone to sit beside her
And chat a little while.

It's hard for her to understand
Just what she's doing there.
What happened to her family
And friends who used to care?

How come she's been abandoned
Like some old worn-out shoe?
What crime has she committed?
What bad thing did she do?

True, she has a bed to sleep in
And she's sheltered from the rain,
But there's a precious little else
To ease her loneliness and pain.

She's only one of many
In an older's home today
Who finds the price for longer life
Is much too high to pay.

That picture could be quickly changed
If all of us would spend
Some extra time just visiting
A relative or friend.

Who's shut away from all the things
That once were held so dear
And needs to be reminded
That at least someone is near.

To take her by the hand and say
"How are you?" with a smile
And then sit close beside her
And just love her for a while.

How Airlines Are Losing Weight

Airlines are trimming back the weight of everything from pulovers to carpets on big jets to save fuel, according to the U.S. Dept. of Energy.

For example, TWA estimates a $343,000 annual savings in fuel costs simply by reducing the weight of its planes by a single magazine per seat.

More jets are also likely to start appearing without paint on their skins. On a 747, the paint weighs nearly 700 pounds and increases the fuel bill.

— But She'd Do It Again for 'Quality Film'

when I was nude — or so I thought. I was terribly shocked when I found that someone on the set sneaked a shot of me that second I was standing nude — and sold it to some magazine. I was very upset. The photo has been a source of embarrassment and aggravation to me to this very day.

"But now I'm in a stronger position in my career than when I did those two horrible films. I can pick and choose."

"I would still not appear completely nude for a film, but I would expose myself from the waist up if it was a legitimate part of the story."

"I would make sure, though, that it was a very high-class film and a very good quality script."

Taxpayers Get Snared!

More than $71,000 of your hard-earned tax money will finance a study on how Filipino women can hunt game and still raise children.

The federal government's National Science Foundation (NSF) is giving the grant to university researchers who plan to observe all of the tribal women who hunt wild pig and deer with bows and arrows.

"This act is an outrageous abuse of tax dollars," declared U.S. Rep. John Breaux (D-La.).

"To spend over $70,000 to study why some women in the Philippines can raise children as well as hunt large forest game just adds to the public's mistrust of government."

In their NSF grant request, the researchers — using high-brow university gobbledegook — said, "Our methodology to explore how women both hunt and also raise children entails ecological or energy flow analysis and also demographic-fertility studies."

And the NSF approved the grant, saying it's rare for tribal women to hunt. The NSF added that the research "should provide important insights into the nature of the women's roles in foraging societies."

Rep. Breaux is so angry that he says he has asked for a Congressional inquiry into the grant. "I hope that we can stop it immediately," he said. PAUL F. LEVY

Housewife in Ohio accidentally invents a delicious bread that helps you lose weight fast

(Canton, Ohio) A housewife in Ohio has possibly invented one of the most powerful weight loss products ever. It is a delicious bread that has amazing abilities to satisfy appetite, hunger and cravings for sweets.

Nancy Sperry of Canton, Ohio accidentally invented the bread while trying to duplicate an ancient bread recipe. This bread recipe is a main food staple for one of the world's three civilizations where people live the longest. This famous civilization, the Hunzas, is located in the Himalayan Mountains.

The bread recipe may have had its origin in Biblical times, because key ingredients are mentioned in Biblical passages. The origin of the Hunza civilization is originally from the armies of Alexander the Great.

The bread is now called Nancy's Special Formula™ Bread. Scientific tests have shown that only a 175 calorie serving of this special bread satisfies appetite, hunger and cravings for sweets for an average of 5½ hours.

Many people now using the bread report dramatic weight loss with little or no discomfort in losing the weight. Many lifetime dieters say that the bread is the only product that ever helped them lose weight. The bread is said to be the most pleasant and safest way to lose weight, and, it is the only product that helps you keep the weight off permanently.

The confidential recipe for Nancy's Special Formula™ Bread is contained in a small special report which also contains details of the origin of the bread, and prepared programs on how to best use the bread to lose weight fast!

This report is available for only $4.95 which includes order processing, postage and handling. This report carries a full money back guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied you will get a complete refund.

Bizarre Brainwashing Cult Cons Top Stars Into Backing Its Drug Program

Some of Hollywood's biggest stars have been duped into endorsing a controversial drug rehabilitation program called Narconon, which is actually operated by the bizarre brainwashing cult, the Church of Scientology.

More than 120 celebrities' names have been used as "Friends of Narconon." Although a few are Scientologists — such as Cathy Lee Crosby, Priscilla Presley and Karen Black — others were shocked to learn Narconon was an offshoot of the weird cult.

Many of the stars were listed as Friends of Narconon after they agreed to attend or participate in athletic events where the proceeds went to Narconon, which runs 15 treatment centers in the U.S. and 30 worldwide. Other celebrities on the list have no idea how their names got there.

Among the celebrities who were named as Friends of Narconon in a list submitted by Cathy Lee Crosby to a Congressional committee investigating drug abuse were:

Catherine Bach of "Dukes of Hazzard," John Davidson, Phyllis Diller, Gregory Harrison of "Trapper John, M.D.," Hal "Barney Miller" Linden, former heavyweight champ Ken Norton, Susan Richardson of "Eight Is Enough," Elvis Presley's former girlfriend Linda Thompson, writer-actor Mickey Spillane, Tanya Tucker, Frank Zappa, Charlene Tilton of "Dallas," Herve "Tattoo" Villechaise, Ralph Waite of "The Waltons," Henry "The Ford" Winkler, Greg Egan of "BJ and the Bear" and Ron Howard, former star of

BLONDE Charlene Tilton of "Dallas" was on the list of stars

"Happy Days," Lou "The Incredible Hulk" Ferrigno and Rob Reiner, who played the role of Archie Bunker's son-in-law on "All in the Family."

"It's true that Narconon's connection to Scientology is not specifically pointed out to every celebrity," admitted Mario Davis, a Scientologist who is executive vice president of Friends of Narconon in Beverly Hills.

However, he added, the celebrities were given pamphlets stating Narconon's drug rehabilitation program is based on the teachings of L. Ron Hubbard.

Hubbard is the founder of Scientology, although he is not identified that way in the pamphlets.

"It's disgraceful, tricky because most people, including celebrities, would have nothing to do with Narconon if they knew of the Scientology connection," declared a former member of Scientology's top secret militant group called the Guardian's Office.

Recently, top leaders of the Scientology cult, including the wife of founder Hubbard, were convicted on federal charges in a massive conspiracy to infiltrate and burglarize government agencies, and thwart investigations of the controversial cult.

Spokesmen for several celebrities named as friends of Narconon expressed shock and dismay when they first learned that Narconon is a front for Scientology.

A spokesman for Henry Winkler said he did not know that the Church of Scientology was involved, absolutely not.

"Had we known, we would not have given permission for his name to be used."

A spokesman for Hal Linden said Linden "had no idea whatsoever" that Scientology was behind the drug program.

Phyllis Diller's spokesman said she wasn't even aware her name had been used as a Friend of Narconon.

"She wants her name removed from it," the spokesman said. "She doesn't want any part of it."

Similarly, spokesmen for Rob Reiner and Lou Ferrigno said those stars do not want their names to be associated with Scientology.

Narconon uses the same secret brainwashing techniques used by Scientologists to recruit new members into the cult, according to the former Scientologist, who was a member for five years.

treatment, the informant revealed. There are four stages of treatment at Narconon centers — starting at $630 and reaching at least $3,500.

"How many druggies can pay those kinds of prices?" the ex-Scientologist asked.

Dr. Forest S. Tennant Jr., a physician, public health specialist and a professor at UCLA, told The ENQUIRER he was hired by the state of California to investigate Narconon.

His probe concluded the program not only made "unsubstantiated" claims about its cure rate, it was also "very dangerous."

Curiosity Thrills the Cat

You've heard of playing cat and mouse, but how about cat and hamster? Here's a furry duo that knows how to play the game. Tom, a curious kitten, peers into a teacup (above) — and is surprised to see none other than his pint-sized pal, Jerry the hamster (right). Jerry, however, is so tickled to see Tom that he scampers all over him, while Tom shuts his eyes to his little friend's zany antics (bottom right).

Criminal Tendencies Are Determined by Age Three

The way a child is reared during the first three years can determine if he will turn into a criminal.

And once the die is cast by age 3 or 4, there's not much anyone can do.

That's the startling conclusion of a new report by the Canadian Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Science.

"The basis for becoming a criminal is surely laid by the age of 3," said Sen. Fred McGrand, M.D., a physician and a member of the committee.

"If you teach children a decent set of values by the age of 3, or 4 at the latest, they'll be normal, law-abiding citizens. Otherwise, it will be much more difficult to do."

The report warns that negative factors on a child begin even when he's still in the womb. Pregnant women who smoke, drink, take drugs or go on fad diets adversely affect the growing fetus.

Regarding the expectant mother's emotional state, severe and prolonged emotional stress during pregnancy may be a factor in the origins of behavior problems," said the report which was the result of three years' research by dozens of medical, psychiatric and police experts.

After the birth, the most important factor in planting the seeds for later criminal behavior is the lack of loving care. The quality of parenting determines the child's personality development, said the report.

"The blend of love and authority is essential in the formative years."

As proof, the report points out that many violent offenders and murderers had been rejected by their parents and virtually as violent juvenile delinquents have been mentally and/or physically abused children.

The remedy is a mother's love, said the report. "There is nothing better for an infant than to experience the smell of the mother, the sound, the feel of the human being by whom it was created."

By WILLIAM NEWCOTT
TV viewers loved him as the mumbling, slow-moving Detective Fish on "Barney Miller" — but offscreen, Abe Vigoda is a lot like the character he played, and his easy pace is ruining his career, insiders say.

In the high-pressure, fast-paced world of Hollywood few people today want to hire Vigoda, who likes to work at his own pace.

"Abe worked slower than the rest of us. He used to make directors pull their hair out," recalled Lenny Bari, a young actor who costarred in Vigoda's spin-off series "Fill."

"He had his own style. You couldn't expect him to run across the stage."

"We on the show thought it was funny — but the money people didn't."

"They've got a show to get out on budget and on schedule."

Since "Fish" folded in 1978, Vigoda has had few major roles.

He appeared recently in a TV children's special, "The Big Stuffed Dog," has done two plays and had guest spots

Abe 'Fish' Vigoda's Low-Gear Style Stalls His Career in Fast-Paced TV

on "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

And according to a Hollywood agent, the lack of big jobs is a direct result of the star's paky approach to acting.

"He's got a horrible reputation in Hollywood," the agent said.

"Onscreen, Americans fell in love with him, but behind the camera he caused all kinds of havoc — from costly delays in production time to his outrageous salary demands."

"Anybody in this business knows that if you're appearing in a part on 'Love Boat' or 'Fantasy Island,' you're either on your way up the show business ladder or you're on the way down. In Abe Vigoda's case, we know which way that is."

"It's kind of tragic. Abe came from nowhere and returned to nowhere in just under five years. He was a producer's and a director's nightmare."

A "Barney Miller" director added, Abe drove us crazy. His behavior was very frustrating, but because he was a star of the show, we had to be very patient.

Vigoda just didn't understand what getting a show out on budget and schedule was all about.

"Time means money in television. The Abe Vigoda style of acting can't go on making money."

Audiences loved Vigoda's laid-back image, and as the popularity of his character grew with his fans, so did his salary demands, the director said.

"He thought that he was the hottest thing ever to come to TV."

But after "Fish" folded, Vigoda never returned as a regular on "Barney Miller," and the once-popular star was left without a weekly series.

But former "Fish" cast member Bari said things could have turned out differently if only the high pressure TV executives had been satisfied with Vigoda being himself.

"They should have given him less to do," the actor explained. "They knew his pace. They were dealing with Abe who has a slower style."

My Feet Were Killing Me... Until I Discovered the Miracle in Germany!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting break through for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Feather Springs. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Germany with my own country.

Over a quarter million Americans including those who have retired—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Feather Springs work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom formed and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whether your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet, Flexible Feather Springs will bring you relief with every step you take or your money back.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Germany can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. No salesman will call. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE MIRACLE

Received my wife's Feather Springs two days ago. They are just what we needed to believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years, already no pain. Incidentally, her shoe size has changed. As a retired physician, this result is amazing. Dr. C.O.C. Tucson, Arizona.

"My husband felt a great relief and no more pain. They are truly an answer to our prayers. Only wish that he had heard of them twenty years ago." Mrs. F.S. Metairie, Louisiana.

I have checked your coupon with a Consumer Protection Agency, and received an excellent report.

Over & Out — at 150 M.P.H.

Zooming along the surface of the water at 150 miles an hour, this speedboat suddenly went out of control and flipped over. Incredibly, boat pilot Tom Black escaped serious injury — and the photo above shows why. As the boat flipped, he was automatically ejected from the cockpit and his small parachute opened, slowing him down and reducing his impact when he hit the water. The action photo was snapped during races held by the National Drag Boat Assn. at Ming Lake near Bakersfield, Calif.

Federal spendthrifts have pumped $1.2 million in tax funds into the silver-lined coffers of a super-rich oil firm!

An Ashland Oil Co. subsidiary was given the stupendous sum to build elaborate, permanent buildings for a synthetic fuels project that's supposed to last only two years.

Conveniently, the facility is next door to an Ashland refinery — and can be claimed by the oil company, at no cost, when the project is completed.

"The Department of Energy's (DOE) requirement was for the design of 'prefabricated buildings with little or no embellishment,'" reported DOE Deputy Inspector General Thomas S. Williamson Jr.

"But the Ashland subsidiary has constructed permanent buildings, installed expensive utilities and changed transportation facilities — apparently to facilitate future expansion of a nearby refinery."

Williamson pointed out that several of the buildings constructed at taxpayer expense were "built to last 40 years."

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars could have been saved if the Ashland subsidiary had adhered to contract specifications and DOE recommendations."

James Butler, a spokesman for the Ashland subsidiary, claimed the DOE

A Slick Waste Of Your Taxes

actually "approved our plans to build that type of building. This shouldn't be any surprise to them."

Not so, responded William Baptiste of the Inspector General's office.

"It's debatable whether anyone in DOE approved it," he declared. "They did send some plans in here — but the program manager due to other workload requirements, didn't get around to looking at them until construction was well underway — and it was too late to change what was going on."

"The thing that's important is that a facility I considered in excess of our needs was built down there."

And an angry Rep. Ron Paul (R-Tex.) thundered, "The entire synthetic fuel program is nothing but corporate welfare — and a waste of the taxpayers' money. This is a perfect example."

Pup Snuggles Up Between the Covers

There's nothing like a good book when you're dog-tired! After letting out a big, contented yawn, this cocker spaniel is ready to snuggle between the covers with some heavy reading, but the pup had better not get the pages of those books too dog-eared. These adorable shots first appeared in our Jan. 6, 1974, issue, and we're running them again as part of our series of memorable ENQUIRER photos from past years.

Wash your windows the professional way — and you won't see streaks, drips or smudges. That's the advice of noted professional cleaning expert Don A. Aslett. Here, in an excerpt from his book "Is There Life After... Housework?" exclusive in The ENQUIRER, Aslett teaches ENQUIRER readers the right way to wash windows.

By DON ASLETT

At my seminars on housecleaning, I always spring the question, "How many of you just 'love' to clean your windows?" I always receive a chorus of groans and wailing out of the ladies present.

And why not? After hours of laboriously polishing on windows, one thinks "At last, I'm finished!" Rubie is dashed to pieces when the sun comes up streaks, sheens, drops and smears appear out of nowhere.

In instant anger the window is again given the old college try, and all those sheens, streaks, and drops only change places. The resulting discouragement from this time-consuming job is generally justified.

HOUSEWORK?

ers, on the other hand, do whole banks of windows in minutes, not hours. Homemakers can be just as effective on their windows if they learn the same basic techniques.

The first move toward successful window cleaning is to rid your storage cabinet of all that "magic glass wax" garbage which you have been trying to make work for years.

The primary reason your window streaks and seems to get worse is probably the oily soapy gunk you have been spraying on them.

To recover all those polishing hours for the last 15 years, let's learn to do the windows professionally. Go down to the janitorial supply house and buy a professional brass or stainless steel squeegee with a 9-, 12- or 14-inch blade. "Steecore" and "Unger" make good ones.

Don't go to the local grocery store or discount house and buy those reconditioned truck tire rubber wafers. They will not work well, even in a professional's hands. Pick up some type of window cleaning solution — just ordinary liquid Joy, ammonia, or high sodium phosphate. All will work well if you use them sparingly. One half lid or capful is plenty for each gallon of cleaner. There is always a tendency to add too much chemical or soap solution, though this is what causes streaks.

Mix in a bucket of warm water and then using a clean sponge, soft bristle brush, or a clean cloth applicator, lightly wet the window. Quickly pick up your squeegee, wipe the dry rubber blade with a damp cloth or chamois.

Tilt the squeegee at an angle pressing the end of the squeegee lightly against the top of the window glass, and pull across the window horizontally. This will leave about a two-inch dry area across the top of the window.

Wipe the squeegee blade again with the damp cloth and place the rubber blade horizontally in the dry area and then pull down, keeping enough lap-over in the dry clean area so as to avoid any surplus water running in the area you have cleaned (wipe the squeegee after each pass).

After completing a window, you undoubtedly will spot a tiny mark or two of moisture on the one-eighth inch area where the side of the glass meets the frame. Your old tendency as to scratch a dry cloth and with a fingertip under it, wipe off the edge. This will undoubtedly leave a finger mark on the side where the window touches the casing.

After squeegeeing the window, just leave those one-eighth inch beads of side moisture. It will disappear and you'll never see it.

AN 'I' FOR DETAIL

A small town couple celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary were asked by a reporter to sum up the reasons for their long and happy marriage.

The husband said, "I've always tried not to be selfish. After all, there is no 'I' in the word marriage. The wife smiled and said sweetly: 'For my part, I have made it a practice never to correct my husband's spelling.'"

Why I Love America

By ANN JILLIAN

Star of "It's a Living"

I love America because it saved my parents from tyranny, helped my older brother, Benito, to recover from polio, and made me into a Hollywood star.

I owe Uncle Sam lots of loyalty, and he'll have it till the day I die.

I was just a little girl sitting on my father's knee when he told me how my family escaped from Russian oppression. My parents fled on two bicycles from Lithuania when Benito was just a baby. He rode in a basket on the handlebars as my parents raced toward the border.

As I grew up, I realized that America opened its arms to my parents and sheltered them from harm. It gave them freedom and great joy.

My mother, who comes from a noble family, and my father, who was an air force pilot, came to this country after they spent years and years on the run.

They were forced to leave all their wealth behind and start from scratch, with very little knowledge of the English language.

This wonderful country was patient with them. It nurtured them and gave them a chance to get on their feet. It fed and clothed them and gave them real security in their time of need.

And America gave my brother Benito the chance to walk when he could have been tragically crippled by polio.

You see, by the time that my parents got to America, Benito was suffering from polio. Other children in Europe were suffering from the

Too Much Exercise Can Wreck Your Marriage

Too much exercise can wreck a marriage — just like alcoholism and drug addiction, according to two psychiatrists.

"The problem of the 'exerciseaholic' appears to be increasingly pronounced in our society," said Dr. Robert Amstadter, psychiatrist and medical director of Sacred Heart Lodge Hospital in El Monte, Calif.

"Nothing in excess is good for you, and that includes exercise. When physical activity interferes with family relationships or with work, the exerciser has an emotional problem."

Exerciseaholics use their addiction to "run away" from deep problems, added Dr. Norman Tamarkin, a psychiatrist who addressed a recent White House symposium on physical fitness.

"These are men who run at lunchtime, run for two hours when they get home at night, grab a bite to eat and pass out — getting to sleep early so they can run in the morning."

"They don't spend much time with their kids," he said. "They don't talk to their wives. A wife may feel her husband is neglecting her, putting the exercise first."

In addition, he said, compulsive exercising can lead to resentment between husband and wife.

"The wife may be threatened by the fact that suddenly he's looking better and she's not," Dr. Tamarkin said.

Are you an exercise junkie? Dr. Tamarkin created this short test to help you find out:

1) Do you feel anxious or guilty if you miss one day of exercise, even if you have a good reason?

2) Do you continue your regular exercise routine even when you're injured or sick?

3) Do you spend more than 50 percent of your available free time exercising?

4) Does your exercise routine often make you late for work or meetings?

5) Does exercise always take precedence over relationships with people?

6) Do you ignore family members' criticism about the effect your exercise routine has on them?

7) Do you feel like your body is falling apart if you

Farm Dogs, Elephants & Porpoises Are World's Happiest Animals

Farm dogs, elephants and porpoises are the world's happiest animals, say experts.

Famed zoologist Dr. Desmond Morris thinks the farm dog enjoys the happiest life. "It lives a rewarding life with plenty of interesting work and exercise so it doesn't get bored."

"It also has a very important ingredient for happiness — security. When it's sick, someone takes care of it and it always has plenty of food," added Dr. Morris, author of "Naked Ape" and "Animal Days."

Jack Hanna, Columbus

(Ohio) Zoo director, believes the female elephant is the happiest animal.

"Most animals' happiness comes from a physical situation, being warm and well, being with a mate and living without fear of being hunted. Nobody attacks the elephant except man so when it's protected, it doesn't have anything to fear. It lives a very contented life with other elephants because they all get along very well."

"The female is probably happier than the male since the male tries to be dominant in the herd and this often results in unhappiness and frustration. The female has the security and companionship of the herd and has the rewarding role of bringing up offspring."

"I also consider the elephant one of the most intelligent animals and this adds to its happiness."

Porpoises are one of the happiest animals too, said Dennis Grimm, past president of the American Assn. of Zoo Keepers.

"They have very few natural enemies in the wild except for man. They are known to be playful and have no problems finding food."

"The family life of a porpoise provides comfort and security and they get along well with each other."

"It's a curious and very intelligent animal. It's happier than man could ever be because it does not live the complicated life that man does."
